Blame "Fire-Bug" Again For Lumber Company Blaze

$5,000 LOSS INCURRED AT DOUBLE FIRE

Chief McGillan Says Evidence Point Toward Incendiarism

Belief was expressed Tuesday by Fire Chief C. McGillan that the "fire-bug" was at work again Monday evening and Tuesday morning when two fires at the plant of the Appleton Lumber Company caused damage estimated at $5,000.

The chief said the cause of the fire is unknown but that an investigation indicated the fire may have been of incendiary origin.

The department was first called out about 9:15 Monday evening when the blaze was discovered in a partition between a storage shed and the east end of the main building. The flames spread rapidly to the roof and through the first floor. Two hose lines were laid and two pumps and the hook and ladder truck were used to fight the blaze. About 10:30 all the equipment and the men had returned to the barns after it was believed the fire was out.

Damage was confined to the east wall of the building and the roof and to a section of the first floor. Considerable machinery and stock were damaged.

Chief McGillan said he believed the fire had been set by the "fire-bug" who was believed to have started three fires in garages about two weeks ago, because of the manner in which the flames gained headway.

The first alarm was received at the department by telephone and it was not learned who had called.

About 11:30 the department was again called to the same building when the flames broke out for a second time. This time the alarm was sent in by a workman at one of the paper mills.

The chief said he thought the second fire could have started either from sparks which remained in the building or by the "fire-bug."

Thorough investigations were being made Tuesday.

Fighting for about two hours, the firemen again brought the blaze under control and successfully managed to keep the damage confined to the same area covered by the fire earlier in the evening. Two pumps and the hook and ladder truck responded to the second call.

The loss was not covered by insurance. Steps are being taken by the company, according to officials, to determine the cause of the damage and to see that no further loss will be necessary to close down a section of the plant until the repairs have been made. It was estimated that it would take from two to three weeks to repair the machinery and building. Only a few men will be out of work.

SHOOTING AT SUPERIOR IS FOUND ACCIDENTAL

Superior (AP)—The shooting of Miss Cecelia Carroll, 24, by her friend, Mrs. Forrest Kelsey, was accidental, officials said today after an investigation late Monday. The shooting occurred when Mrs. Kelsey is said to have been showing a pistol left her by her husband to Miss Carroll in her home Sunday. No report of the accident was made to police at the time and a doctor was not called to attend the victim until two hours later. Miss Carroll is reported in a serious condition with a bullet lodged in her lung.

REFRIGERATOR GAS BLAMED FOR DEATH OF CHICAGO WOMAN

Chicago (AP)—Methyl chloride gas escaping from an electric refrigerator was given by a coroner's jury last night as the cause of death of Mrs. Violet Clark, 29, in her apartment Saturday.

At the same time the department of health estimated that at least 15 persons and perhaps many more have died in Chicago in recent months from the same cause. Four persons have been victims of the gas within the last 10 days, the department said.

The jury, composed of pathologists and expert chemists, recommended that "proper public officials and the leaders in the artificial refrigerating industry" join to seek means "for the protection of the public against recurrence of such deaths."

Representatives of the artificial refrigerator industry sought unsuccessfully to have the hearing continued to permit experts in refrigeration to testify. They explained that millions of dollars were invested in that every possible precaution had been and is being taken to protect the public.

The jury, of which Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, was foreman, took cognizance in its verdict of the fact that "hundreds of thousands of refrigerators have been installed over the country."

SAFEGUARD PUBLIC

"The jury feels, however, that the public should be properly protected and that both public officials and heads of the refrigerating industry must take steps to prevent further sickness and death from these causes," the verdict said.

Evidence was presented at the inquest to show that between 60,000 and 75,000 refrigerators in Chicago use methyl chloride as part of the processing and making and that thousands more use carbon disulfide and less dangerous agents.

Methyl chloride was described as being so insidious in its effects that the victims neither smell nor perceive the gas until suddenly they become inert and mentally fogged.

Coroner's Physician Ralph Webster testified that there was no doubt of the cause of death. He told of placing two live guinea pigs in the Clark apartment Sunday night and of finding them dead yesterday morning with unmistakable signs of methyl chloride poisoning.

The refrigerator men expressed the opinion that the gas was not as poisonous as pictured. They said that they were particularly anxious to prevent its leakage, not only because of the possible dangers to life, but also because of the high cost of replacing it.

Some of them said that replacement of methyl chloride was one of the most expensive items the refrigerator companies had to face.

E. T. Williams, consulting engineer and a member of the technical committee of the National Electric Manufacturers association, said today he could not believe methyl chloride gas was wholly to blame for the deaths.

He told of eating a frozen strawberry dipped in liquid methyl without harm, a demonstration he declared he conducted annually at trade conventions. He named several manufacturers making machines which used methyl or similar gases.

Methyl chloride, the engineer stated, was regarded as the least dangerous of any refrigerant gas and as such has been used for 30 years by the French navy.

TANAKA LOSES REINS AT HEAD OF JAP REGIME

Opposition Leader Is Summoned to Palace by Emperor Hirohito

Tokyo (AP)—The government of Premier Baron Tanaka resigned shortly before noon today in a cabinet crisis precipitated by investigation of the assassination in Manchuria last year of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, Chinese military oppositionist.

The resignation was presented to Emperor Hirohito his majesty sent for Yugo Mamiaguchi, liberal or Minseito opposition leader, ostensibly to ask him to form a new cabinet.

Prince Solonji, former premier and one of the "Genro" or so-called elder statesmen, also was summoned, presumably to advise with the throne and the Minseito leader with regard to a new government.

The retiring premier issued a statement explaining his resignation. He recounted his administration's achievements and then touched upon the government's fall. He concluded: "I deeply regret that a certain incident occurring outside the empire was wrongly used as a political instrument," the reference being to the death of Chang Tso-Lin.

The cabinet crisis as it has been explained came as a climax of the investigation of Chang's death, which took place at Mukden after the marshal's retreat from Peking. The investigators censured certain Manchurian officials for not notifying the home office when they drew their surveillance on the night on which Chang arrived at Mukden.

OPPOSED PUNISHMENT

General Yoshinori Shirakawa, minister of war, vigorously opposed punishment or reprimand of these officers, bringing on the fall of the Selyuk ministry, which was first organized in April 1927, and was reconstituted in 1928 after new parliamentary elections.

The election of 1928 gave the diet the following party apportionment: Seikukai, or conservatives, 221; Minseito, or liberals, 214; Independents, 16; Labor, 8; Jitsugyo Doshikai (business men's party), 4; Kakushin, 3; total 466. The Minseito has shown a tendency recently to lose prestige.

Another cause contributing to the fall of the government was believed to have been dissatisfaction with the handling of the ratification of the Kellogg anti-war pact. Opposition centered about the phrase, "in the names of their respective peoples," and developed so strongly that ratification for a long time was in doubt.

WARNS SCHOOLS NOT TO ACCEPT PROPAGANDA

Atlanta (AP)—A warning that public schools must not be subverted to propaganda was given today in a committee's report to the representative assembly of the National Education association in convention here.

The report was submitted by the chairman, Edwin C. Broome, superintendent of schools of Philadelphia, Pa.

"The propagandist is knocking at the school door," said the report. "In some instances he has already been admitted. There is nothing to indicate that he will overlook the schools in the future."

CHILD SLAYER MAY LEAVE HIS PARENTS

6-year-old Carl Mahan May Be Placed in Custody of Strangers

Paintsville, Ky. (AP)—Carl Newton Mahan, 6-year-old slayer who was saved by an appeal from a sentence to the reform school until he was 21, today faced the possibility that he may be taken from his parents and placed in the care of others.

County Judge John W. Butcher yesterday declared the boy a delinquent and paroled him to the custody of the Kentucky Children's bureau, a state organization whose functions are mostly of an advisory character.

Mrs. Emma Hunt, director of the bureau, said at Louisville, a special meeting of the board is to be held in a few days to decide on the disposition of the boy.

The boy's status again became a matter for the courts as a result of the prosecution last week of his father, John Mahan, a taxicab driver, on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Carl killed his playmate, Cecil Van Hoose, with his father's shotgun after the two had quarreled over a piece of scrap iron each wanted to sell to a junk dealer. A jury found him guilty of manslaughter, and Judge Butcher sentenced him to the reform school, but an appeal to the circuit court ruled that the county judge had no authority to pass finally on such a case.

Protests by the hundreds from all sections of the country were received here after the conviction and sentence of the boy, small for his age, and in appearance even younger than his six years.

John W. Wheeler, attorney for the boy, said that if the bureau leaves Carl with his parents the delinquency order will not be opposed, but that if an attempt is made to place him in an institution or another home, an appeal will be taken.

Unskilled women textile workers in Germany now receive $5.25 a week.

2 Federal Dry Agents Are Nabbed

Face Jones Law Prosecution for Helping Convey Fleet of Booze Trucks

New York (AP)—Two federal prohibition agents were under arrest today accused of conveying a fleet of liquor trucks on Long Island.

The agents John J. Kerrigan and John J. Calnan, were held in $3,000 bail, each after Deputy Sheriff William Lindsay of Peconic, N. Y., told a United States commissioner he found them escorting a caravan of five trucks through Riverhead, N. Y., on the night of June 19.

Lindsay said he stopped three large trucks and two smaller ones on the Nassau-co road. Kerrigan and Calnan alighted from a coupe which was fourth in the procession and explained they were escorting a liquor seizure to the army base in Brooklyn. While the deputy was talking with the agents the two smaller trucks and the drivers of the three large ones escaped.

Kerrigan's record in the department showed he had been previously arrested for threatening with a loaded revolver John Devlin, safety director of Bayonne, N. J., for assaulting a man in a raid on a night club, and for possessing burglar tools. All the charges were dismissed.

He also was arrested in October, 1925, in connection with the shooting by a policeman of Owen Boyle in a speakeasy. He appeared as a witness against the policeman, who was acquitted.

He was discharged from the prohibition force in 1926 by Director Major Chester P. Mills and reinstated a year later by Maurice Campbell, Mills' successor. Calnan was appointed an agent only three months ago.

Both agents were suspended pending outcome of the charges. United States Attorney Amell of Brooklyn, said they would be prosecuted under the Jones law for transporting liquor.

New York (AP)—A special conference on the southern textile situation has been called for July 14 by Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile workers. It was announced today. The conference will be held at Rye, N. Y., on the estate of Mrs. Daniel O'Day.

The Southern organization staff of the United Textile workers is expected to attend the conference following a meeting of the national executive board of the union to be held here July 11, 12 and 13. Rayon workers from Elizabethton and cotton mill hands from North and South Carolina will be present.

William F. Kelly, who has been in charge of the Elizabethton strike and Alfred Hoffman, organizer who figured in the Tennessee kidnapping episode, will be among the speakers.

Al Capone Beaten In 2nd Move To Get Out Of Jail

Philadelphia (AP)—Al Capone, Chicago gang leader, has lost the second round of his battle to get out of the county prison where he is serving a year's sentence for carrying a loaded pistol in this city.

After hearing argument on a petition to permit the gangster's release in bail pending the outcome of his appeal for a reversal of sentence of a new trial, Judges William B. Linn and Jesse B. Cunningham, of the state superior court, yesterday head down an order refusing it.

The appeal itself will not be heard by the superior court until next October. No further action in Capone's behalf can be taken until then.

Judge John E. Walsh, of the municipal court, who on May 17, accepted Capone's plea of guilty and gave him the maximum sentence along with his bodyguard, Frank Cline, last Saturday refused to reverse the sentence or grant a new trial.

Capone's application for freedom did not include Cline. In their arguments for his release on bail counsel for Capone declared that their client had been "railroaded" to jail; that the crowd in the court room was hostile; that Judge Walsh was prejudiced against the defense; and that Capone did not have a fair trial.

At the close of the argument Cornelius Haggarty, Jr., one of the lawyers who represented Capone at his arraignment, said it probably was his fault that the gangsters had pleaded guilty.

"I guess it was my ignorance," Haggarty said when asked by Judges Linn and Cunningham why he had not formally challenged the competency of Judge Walsh to impose sentence after the court's alleged prejudicial remarks.

The failure of defense counsel to have all that was said and done at Capone's trial noted stenographically was commented upon several times by Judges Linn and Cunningham, who asserted that in the record of the case received by the superior court from the lower court there was nothing to indicate error was committed.

BEET WEEDER INJURED AS CAR TIPS OVER

Sherwood—While driving Darle Morales, a Mexican beet weeder to Lettlers to show him a beet field on which Morales was to work, John Gerend, Kaukauna, field agent for the Menominee Sugar Co. lost control of his car and drove it down a steep embankment where it turned over about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon near the Nic' Bruhl farm, Sherwood.

Both occupants were pinned underneath the wreckage. Morales fractured a hand and received possible internal injuries. Gerend was able to extricate himself from the wreckage to assist the other man. The top of the machine was demolished.

EMBASSY IN TOKIO WON'T BE DRIED UP

Tokio (AP)—It has been learned here that the American embassy is contemplating no new decision with reference to serving alcoholic liquors. An entirely passive attitude has been taken toward the action of Ambassador Dawes in drying up the American embassy at London.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zoerb, two Rivers, spent the weekend visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zoerb of this city.

OPPOSES IMMIGRATION CURB FOR MEXICANS

Washington (AP)—Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, leader of the movement in the senate to prevent repeal of the national origins quota basis, believes it is unnecessary at present to apply the restrictions to Mexico.

He set forth his position today in a letter to Captain John E. Trevor of New York, chairman of the American condition, of about 199 organizations supporting the national origins plan.

He warned that if Mexico on a quota might have "serious international implications and result in diplomatic and legislative difficulties. Praising the "singularly successful" diplomacy of President Hoover and ambassador Morrow in dealing with Latin America, he said administrative remedies already applied had resulted in cutting down Mexican immigration by 65 per cent.

He declared the victory for the national origins supporters "was conclusive" in the senate, and predicted that further attempts to repeal or modify the provision, which President Hoover opposes, would fail.

SODA WATER IS UNDER FOOD BUREAU CONTROL

Madison (AP)—City governing bodies may grant licenses for sale of non-intoxicating liquor, or beverages containing alcohol in quantities insufficient for inebriation, but licenses for sale of soda water beverages are to be issued by the state dairy and food commission.

This was the opinion of John W. Reynolds, attorney general in a letter to Francis J. Golden, Merrill, Lincoln-district attorney, in a letter today. Mr. Reynolds quoted the dairy and food commission chemist as saying that near beer is a non-intoxicating liquor, while soda pop and the various trade name drinks are soda water beverages, since they do not contain perceptible alcoholic contents. The attorney general quoted from a states supreme court decision which held town and village boards and city common councils can license for sale of non-intoxicating liquors; but not for sale of soft drinks, or, he said, soda water beverages.

Today Mr. Reynolds said he was opposing the opinion an official one because of numerous requests he had received from judgment on the matter.

KENTUCKY FLOODS DRIVE OUT FAMILIES

Lexington, Ky. (AP)—Storms in central and eastern Kentucky here yesterday forced two score or more families from their homes, washed away several bridges, and lightning took the life of a high school boy.

At Carlisle Brushy Fork rose rapidly after a heavy downpour and flooded some fifty dwellings and the basements of many business establishments.

Benjamin Powers, 20, was killed by lightning at the home of his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Lindelle.

Damage to crops and outbuildings estimated as high as $100,000 was caused at Owensville and in Bathco and the Licking river was rising rapidly as the result of a torrential rain. Damage at Paintsville was estimated at $10,000.

a busy street corner is in more danger from poisoning than the occupant of a small kitchen with a unit refrigerator," Williams said. There was no refrigerator, he asserted, without some hazard, but there is a minimum of risk in the single unit home refrigerator.

"KELVINATORS soon pay for themselves . . . sometimes in food preservation alone!"

That is what owners everywhere will tell you

THERE are people who believe that an electric refrigerator is something for the well-to-do—that it costs "a lot of money." This is an entirely wrong impression . . . if you buy the New Silent Kelvinator!

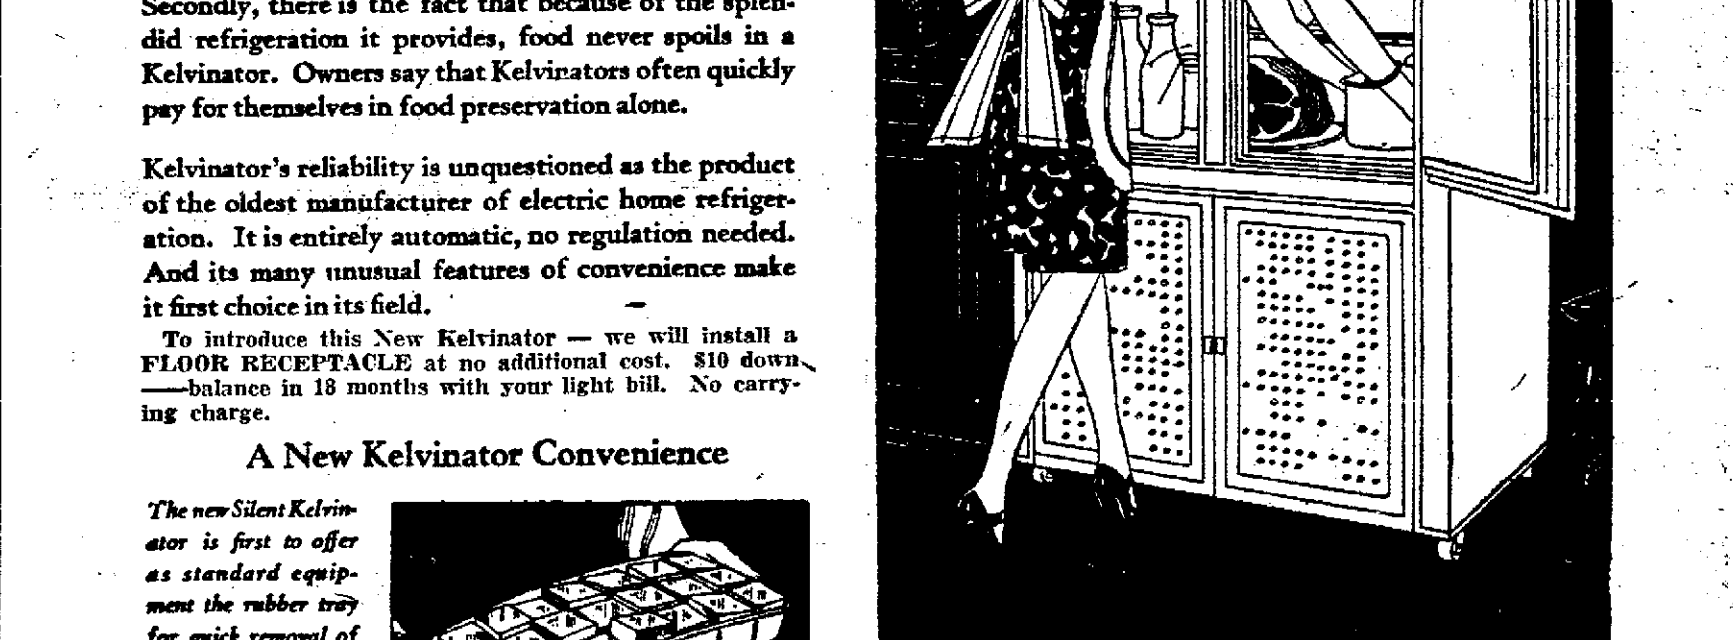

For, first of all, the New Kelvinator is remarkably inexpensive in its initial cost. And the terms on which you may own one are surprisingly generous.

Secondly, there is the fact that because of the splendid refrigeration it provides, food never spoils in a Kelvinator. Owners say that Kelvinators often quickly pay for themselves in food preservation alone.

Kelvinator's reliability is unquestioned as the product of the oldest manufacturer of electric home refrigeration. It is entirely automatic, no regulation needed. And its many unusual features of convenience make it first choice in its field.

To introduce this New Kelvinator — we will install a FLOOR RECEPTACLE at no additional cost. $10 down—balance in 18 months with your light bill. No carrying charge.

Sixty Scout Leaders to Receive Certificates; Award Badges

Arrangements have been completed for the massive "open house" program at Camp Chicagami, valley council boy scout camp on Lake Winnebago, four and one-half miles east of Waukegan, from 4:30 to 10 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and evening, according to M. G. Clark, valley scout executive.

The "open house" program will have a four-fold purpose, the first of which will be in the form of an honorary banquet for 60 members of the Five Year Progressive Training school for valley scout leaders to be given in the mess hall at the camp at 6:30 Tuesday evening. Scouts and their parents are requested to come to the camp after 4:30 and bring a basket lunch with them.

The program also will mark the official send off of two valley scouts to the international "Jamboree" at Arrowe Park, Birkenhead, England, and for Kenneth Walsworth, of Troop 2 of the First Methodist church, who will leave soon for the government trail building camp at Glacier National park.

George Breitung and Donald Ruch, Menasha scouts, will be honored guests. The youngsters will leave within the next week for Rockford, Ill., where they will join the Rockford council "jamboree" preparatory camp.

An elaborate program of entertainment has been arranged by the various committees in charge. One of the features will be the awarding of two Eagle scout badges to Lyle Eckrich and Anthony Thelen, Troop 9, Menasha.

An inspection tour of Camp Chicagami will be conducted by Mr. Clark. Later in the evening youngsters will be permitted to go swimming and games and stunts will furnish other entertainment.

TAX REDUCTION TALK ALREADY STARTED IN NATION'S CAPITAL

Most Members of Congress Think No Action Possible Until December

Washington—(P)—The months of discussion about tax reduction in congressional circles have already begun with the $185,000,000 treasury surplus as the inspiration.

Except an assertion by Secretary Mellon that the question of recommending reductions has not been considered, administration officials have withheld comment on the prospects. Members of congress who are still in the capital are less reticent, but most of them think that, if any reduction proposal at all is to come from the administration, it cannot be expected before the regular sessions begin in December.

Democrats of the senate finance committee, here chiefly because of the tariff revision hearings, lost no time in raising the question, and Chairman Smoot, frequently an administration spokesman on financial affairs, was equally prompt with the declaration, "nothing doing."

Senators Simmons of North Carolina, and Harrison of Mississippi committee Democrats who sought greater reductions than were proposed by the last administration during consideration of the present tax law, pointed to the surplus as vindicating their stand and disclosed their intention to press for further reduction.

Senator Smoot cited the treasury's opinion that most of the surplus was built up out of additions of individual incomes from stock market profits, and argued that a quite different result might be shown a year from now, since those who showed gains last year might incur losses this year which would reduce their income tax payments.

Chairman Hawley of the house ways and means committee, which originates all tax legislation, wants to know what the treasury situation will be in December before committing himself on the question. He sees increased expenditures ahead in farm relief, Boulder Canyon Dam and Mississippi flood control work, but if these can be met without producing an unfavorable fiscal situation, he feels, a deduction might be possible.

ROHAN PROPOSES MORE OPERATING EXPENSES FOR "U"

Kaukauna Assemblyman Also Would Eliminate Increase in Fees

Madison—(P)—Assemblyman Lynn Ashley, of Hudson, would cut the University of Wisconsin's appropriation for new buildings in half, or from $600,000 to $300,000. His amendment, among the 12 to the university financing bill now before the legislature, accompanies one by John E. Rohan, Kaukauna, assemblyman and junior at the state university.

Rohan's amendment would increase by $260,000 annually the amounts granted for operating expenses, out of which instructors' salaries come. The joint finance committee bill provides for $2,892,000 in 1929, and $2,990,000 in 1930 for operating expenses. The Rohan amendment would make these sums $3,152,000 and $3,250,000 respectively.

This amendment would also remove the finance committee's note in the bill that University fees are to be increased. Rohan planning that the money for increases be taken from the state's general fund.

Assemblyman Arthur Litt, Alma who has introduced three amendments providing for different forms of student tax to help meet the university appropriation, has a fourth amendment which specifically prohibits the increasing of fees of out-of-state students to more than $150 per year, or $75 per semester.

John W. Groeschmidt, Milwaukee has presented an amendment which would make the regents charge out-of-state students not less than $400 per school year.

Harold Maichow, Green Bay, would eliminate the $100,000 that the university is granted by the finance committee bill for the biennial investigation and to encourage productive scholarship.

Assemblyman Charles A. Budlong has introduced an amendment prohibiting increase in tuition fees and calling for a surtax on incomes over $5,000 to raise $8,000,000 of the $10,000,000 university appropriation.

AGED TEXAN SOUGHT AFTER BREAKING 50 HEARTS AND PURSES

New York. (AP)—An elderly six-foot Texan who is said by the police to have left a trail of at least fifty broken hearts and as many empty purses across the continent was being held today as a fugitive from Amarillo, Texas.

They said the elderly Lohario, who described himself as Charles E. Boyles, 68, was wanted in Texas City for a charge of bigamy and grand larceny and for jumping $10,000 bail on April 4, 1928.

His arrest, they said, cut short a romance he had started here with a Brooklyn woman, whom they described as the widow of a banker. They said another Brooklyn woman stopped going with him only after he had spent nearly $7,000 while in his company.

Boyles, when arraigned in Jefferson Market court, declared he was innocent of the bigamy charge and asserted he had obtained a divorce before the questioned marriage. He was held under $10,000 bail for a hearing Friday.

FATHER OF FORMER OHIO COACH IS DEAD

Milwaukee. (AP)—John W. Wilce, 77, father of Dr. John Wilce, former head football coach at Ohio State university, died at his home here today, after a brief illness. His son sailed from New York Saturday for Europe.

Mr. Wilce, who was a retired stone cutter, was born in Rutland, England, Aug. 13, 1841 and came to the United States in 1867. He lived for some time in New York and returned to England for a short visit during which he married Miss Elizabeth Grubb.

Upon their return to the United States, the Wilces lived for a time in New York and Chicago, living in the latter city during its great fire of '87.

The Wilces moved to Milwaukee in 1873, where Mr. Wilce entered the stone cutting trade, which he followed until 1919.

YOUNG FARMER GETS 99-YEAR TERM FOR POISONING HIS WIFE

Boston, Tex. (AP)—Ocie Nix, young Malpa, farmer, was convicted of the poison murder of his 15-year-old wife, Venita, and sentenced to 99 years imprisonment by a jury here last night.

Mrs. Nix, mother of a five-month old child, died on June 18, shortly after neighbors heard her scream and found her in convulsions.

An alleged confession by Nix that he fed her a capsule of poison was not introduced at the trial. The defense pleaded for leniency on the ground that paralysis had left Nix partly disabled and mentally unbalanced.

MISSING BANKER SAFE AT HIS HOME

Tells Police He Was Kidnaped and Held Captive by Three Men

Nutley, N. J. (AP)—Reappearing as mysteriously as he disappeared last Wednesday, Willard H. Elliott, Passaic banker, was found sitting in his automobile by police early today. He told of having been kidnapped and held captive by three men.

Except for a several days' growth of beard, he appeared none the worse for his experiences. He said no threats had been made by his captors, nor any ransom demanded and could assign no reason for his abduction.

After telling his story to the police and telephoning John J. Roegner, president of the Hobart Trust company where he was vice president and treasurer, he left for his home in East Orange.

He said while enroute to Passaic last Wednesday morning from his home in East Orange his machine was forced off the road by a car containing three men who forced him out of his machine and drove away. He said he was captive from Wednesday night until last night and was refused permission to communicate with any one.

He said last night he started drinking with his captors and when they became drunk he managed to get away. He found his own machine in front of the place where he had been held.

In his telephone conversation with Mr. Roegner he said he would report at the bank on Wednesday as he wanted one day to rest up after his experience. Upon assuring themselves of Elliott's identity the police permitted him to depart for his home.

Elliott had last been seen Wednesday morning taking his 8-year-old daughter to school on his way to the bank. A check of his books by state banks examined, which was underway at the time he disappeared, was said by Mr. Roegner to show all his accounts in order. Police Chief William H. O'Neill of East Orange, said an investigation of Elliott's bank accounts showed he had little cash on deposit, but Mrs. Elliott explained this as due to most of the family's assets being tied up in the purchase of a home.

LADY ASTOR LOSES "RACE" FOR SEAT IN BRITISH PARLIAMENT

London. (AP)—Lady Astor, sitting for Sutton division, Plymouth, was a close runner in a choice bit of comedy at the opening of parliament today.

She arrived early, dressed in navy blue tailored suit, blue hat and flesh colored silk hose, the first woman to get there. She sprang from her motor car before it stopped at the members entrance and ran into the building.

Sir Frederick Hall, another Conservative member and her rival for a choice corner seat on the opposition side of the commons chamber, appeared about the same time and cut near her path.

Inside the two early arriving members found the doors still closed but as soon as they opened both hurried in, leading some two score other members who in the meantime had arrived. Lady Astor stopped for an instant or two to get a card from an attendant in order to place her name on the seat and the slight delay was fatal.

Sir Frederick indulged in no lost motion but kept right on and staked his claim for the seat, beating his Virginia rival by a second or two.

CRUZE PORTRAIT CENTER OF SUIT

Motion Picture Director Brings Action in Alleged Defamation

Los Angeles, Calif. (AP)—A portrait of James Cruze, which the motion picture director had intended giving his wife, Betty Compson, film actress, was made the basis of a $200,000 punitive suit here yesterday against John Decker, an artist.

The director said when the suit was filed that the action was intended as punishment for Decker's refusal to accept the picture.

The painting was bad enough, the director contended; but the thing which pained him most was the fact that Decker displayed the portrait behind a set of bars in a Hollywood, Calif., show window.

"James Cruze — in prison for debt." The artist said he did this after Cruze refused to pay for the painting.

"Naturally I wouldn't pay him," Cruze said. "If I ever showed my wife the picture Decker painted it would scare her to death—mouth like a grayole; face like a strabismic frog. I wanted a portrait, not a funny picture."

Cruze charged in the suit that the display of the portrait held him up to "public contempt and ridicule."

"I intend the action as punishment, that's all," he said.

MAIL ORDER HOUSES PLAN PURCHASES OF MANUFACTURED FURS

Believe New Market Will Increase Purchase-power of Raisers

BY J. C. BOYLE Copyright, 1929

New York.—With the trappers and fur farmers of the country making active preparations for the coming fur season, it was reported today that some of the large mail order houses were contemplating the purchase of the manufactured pelts on a large scale throughout the country. It is known they have conducted a survey of considerable spread for some time with this possibility in view.

The trappers and fur farmers have complained for some time that methods of marketing their pelts were such as to deprive them of full return on their product.

It is understood the mail order concerns hope by this method to increase the purchasing power of many of their customers. This in effect would constitute what is really a return to the old barter trade in operation when the original John Jacob Astor was in the fur business, and which still obtains to some extent in northern Canada, where the Hudson's Bay company and other firms are doing business.

NOT MUCH EFFECT

It is believed this will not affect the larger fur farmers and those who specialize in the rarer and more expensive skins, such as silver fox. The domestically raised furs now entering the market amount to between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 in value annually. About $5,000,000 worth of furs are purchased each year by Americans abroad but this total is likely to decline decidedly as a result of action by congress which provides that furs taken abroad be registered so that the possibility of shipping in foreign purchased furs free of duty will be minimized.

The growth of the fur manufacturing business in this country has been phenomenal. According to department of commerce figures the value of manufactured furs annually is now slightly better than $300,000,000. The Mississippi valley is now the largest producing area of furs from trapped animals in the world. But the output from this region is largely made up from skunks, opossums, muskrats, and raccoons. Other animals are trapped but in much smaller numbers. The muskrat catch averages about 12,000,000 skins, skunk pelts number between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 and raccoon pelts 600,000 to 1,000,000 a year.

The domestic rabbit industry accounts for a huge volume of fur which go into garments and fells. This fur is sold under 50 or more trade names. There are some 100,000 breeders whose rabbits number all the way from a dozen to 32,000. About 100,000,000 pelts are used annually, of which about 55,000,000 are dressed and dyed to imitate some more expensive fur. The remainder is used to manufacture hatter's felt.

THEY SECTION

There are therefore two distinct sections of the industry in breeding fur bearing animals—the quantity, or rabbit sections, and the quality or fox section. The outstanding feature of the silver fox breeding business is the fact that the silver fox pelts have never been successfully imitated. There are some 40 types of rabbits bred, of which the chinchilla, Flemish giants and New Zealand are perhaps the more popular. They raise 4 to 6 litters a year of 4 to 10 animals each.

A large amount of rabbit meat is sold for human food purposes throughout the year and for animal food. In fact this is one angle where the two sections of the fur breeding industry join. Rabbit meat furnished the principal article of diet for the domestically grown foxes. It is on the diet that successful breeding of foxes of the highest type depends. Their food is tested with almost as much care as that of a royal child. The white rat fills the place of "taster." The rats littered show quickly whether there is something wrong with the diet as their breeding seems to parallel those of the foxes themselves, but the reason for this is not a breeder to change the diet before irreparable harm has been done.

The preliminary outfitting of trappers at the Twin Cities, St. Louis, Kansas City and New Orleans so far indicates an especially heavy catch of wild fur bearing animals this coming winter.

FINISH TESTIMONY IN ROBINSON WILL CONTEST HEARING

Brothers and Sisters Attempt to Prove Woman Was Mentally Unbalanced

Milwaukee. (AP)—Testimony was completed here late yesterday in the contest of two brothers and a sister of Florence Porter Robinson against her will in which she bequeathed virtually all of her $50,000 fortune to the university of Wisconsin for the establishment of a chair of history.

The three contestants, George, Irving and Mabel Robinson, assert that their sister was mentally unbalanced for a year prior to her death in July of 1926. They contend that her mind failed her a few weeks after she was honored with a doctorate in philosophy by the state university.

Attorneys have been asked to submit briefs within two weeks. A date will be then set for argument. John J. Trell, handwriting expert, was called into court yesterday on behalf of the proponents of the will and asked to decipher notes made by Dr. H. V. Ogden, who treated Miss Robinson during her last illness.

These notes had previously been read into the record by the doctor, who testified from his sickbed, when court was adjourned to his home.

QUESTION OF NOTE

Mr. Trell said that words that Dr. Ogden had read as "cloudy mental condition" actually were "clearly neurotic condition."

Much of Monday's testimony had to do with dogs owned by the Robinson family. Counsel for the contestants indicated that they would attempt to show that Miss Robinson's intention to cut off her family was induced in part by animosity engendered by her sister Mabel's insistence on keeping dogs in the house.

Minnie J. Cook, who lived next to the Robinsons, testified that they kept as many as six dogs at one time. She said that she made numerous complaints about their noise.

Miss Valerie Wickham, a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago and for several years secretary to the president of Beloit college, testified that she was an intimate friend of the dead woman and that she visited her during her last illness. She said that she saw nothing that caused her to believe that her friend was mentally ill.

No attempt was made by either side to introduce expert testimony on the subject of insanity.

KING OUTLINES LABOR POLICIES

The king's speech, read to parliament today by Lord Chancellor Sankey, follows:

"While I regret that it is not possible to address you in person, I thank Almighty God that I can look forward with confidence to that complete restoration of health for which the prayers of my people throughout the empire, with sympathy and affection which will call forth my deepest gratitude, were offered during the months of my long illness."

"My relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly."

"The independent financial experts appointed to draw up proposals for complete and definite settlement of the German reparations problem have presented a unanimous report which is at present being considered by my government in preparation for a conference of representatives of the governments concerned."

"A settlement of this problem will enable occupying powers to proceed with evacuation of the Rhineland."

"Conversations have commenced with the ambassador of the United States of America on the subject of naval disarmament in consequence of which it is the earnest hope of my government to insure in cooperation with my governments in the dominions the government of India and the governments of the foreign powers in early reduction in armaments throughout the world."

FOR WORLD COURT

"My government considers the time has come to submit to judicial settlement international disputes in which parties are in conflict as to their respective rights. For this purpose they are now consulting with my governments in the dominions and the government of India regarding the signing of the optional clause embodied in the statute of the permanent court of international justice."

"My government as exemplifying the conditions under which diplomatic relations with government of Union of Soviet Socialist Republics may be resumed and are on communication with my governments in the dominions and the government of India on the subject."

"Estimates for public service will be laid before you. It will be the foremost endeavor of my ministers to deal with unemployment."

(At this point the grown address announced that dinner was being prepared for improvement of trade, port, stimulation of the depressed export trade, economic development of overseas dependencies, improvement in agriculture and the fishing industry, and improvement of the facilities for marketing farm and fishery output.)

ON COAL INDUSTRY

"My government have under consideration the question of reorganization of the coal industry including hours and other factors and of ownership of minerals. Proposals to this end will be submitted in due course."

Inquiries will be undertaken into the condition of the iron and steel and cotton industries in order to discover the means for cooperating with them to improve their position in the markets of the world."

"Bills will be laid before you for amending existing factory legislation and for giving effect to obligations entered into in Washington in 1919."

(Legislation was promised for slum clearance and to provide for housing in rural and urban areas.)

"My ministers decided that the time has come to investigate the whole field of legislation relating to sale and supply of intoxicants."

On the subject of international relations, the king's recommendation I propose to appoint an early date commissioners for this purpose."

Mention was made of the survey of national insurance and pensions schemes and it was said a bill was being prepared to amend the widows and orphans and old age contributory pensions act. A measure also will be introduced to remedy the situation caused by the trades disputes and Trade Unions act of 1927.

The speech concluded: "At the recent general election an extended franchise placed in the hands of the whole of my people of adult years the grave responsibility of guarding the well being of this nation as a constitutional democracy, and my government propose to institute an examination of experience of the election so that the working of the law relating to parliamentary elections may be brought into conformity with new conditions."

Describe Rescue

Gibraltar. (AP)—Shortage of water, cold, rough seas and a bitter sense of being at the mercy of the waves were the chief memories of Major Ramon Franco and his three companions who reached Gibraltar today.

"Ask anything you want," said Major Franco to the correspondent of the Associated Press who talked with him. Out of gas and, much to their surprise, beyond the Azores, the airmen were compelled to alight on the sea.

"The landing was made perfectly on a quilt s," said Major Franco. "My watch showed nine in the morning. At first we did not know where we were, although we presumed that we could not be so far from the Azores. Then the sea became rough and strong winds pushed the plane from one side to the other. We saw no vessel. We felt slightly cold."

"Naturally, we were much disappointed. Thinking that we would soon see a boat, we settled ourselves and arranged to stand guard."

"We were not worried about eating since we had food for 15 days. The first night we did not sleep although at dawn I had a little nap in the commanding cabin. On the morning of the 23rd the sea was rough and we feared for the plane."

WATER FROM RADIATOR

"We began, then, to feel thirsty, but soon decided to drink the water stored in the radiator."

"The following night was rather bad. It was cold. The sea was rough and the plane was being buffeted by the waves. We were then beginning to feel somewhat uneasy and nobody slept."

"Toward morning the sea became calmer and we were able to rest a little. We were hoping to see some ships. On the night of the 24th we began to light rockets but our signals were sent up to no avail."

When topics of conversation became exhausted during our moments of leisure, when we were not on watch, we began to wonder what our families were thinking in Spain.

"We spent our time scanning the horizon. There was one moment when we almost despaired of ever being saved, we shall always remember the night of the 27th which was terrible. The sea was strongly lashing the plane and we saw a strong right wing being broken up. Further the rudder was being affected by the constant beating of the waves. The situation was almost desperate

WOMEN IN CONGRESS ARE PROVING THEIR FITNESS FOR WORK

It's No Longer Necessary to Be a Solon's Widow to Get in

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington — One thing the special session of Congress has demonstrated is that the women members are standing more and more on their own feet. Widowed, becomes less a requirement for entry.

Emphasis to these facts has been provided especially by the ladies known as the "Three Ruths." Mrs. McCormick of Illinois, Mrs. Owen of Florida and Mrs. Pratt of New York.

Observation of these ladies in action leads inescapably to the conclusion that the number of congresswomen will increase, gradually and that it is no great jump for prominent women already actually engaged in public life. Jeanette Rankin, the first congresswoman, was not a widow, and there is every reason to believe that there will be many more single ladies along.

DIDN'T NEED HER HUSBAND
Before the "Three Ruths" came here there was but one congresswoman whose husband had not preceded her in the House. That was Mrs. Mary Norton of New Jersey, who for years before her election had served in Democratic state politics and whose husband is a business man. Mrs. Katherine Langley of Kentucky was no widow, either, but she had succeeded her husband when his seat was vacated by his sentence to the Atlanta penitentiary.

The widows of Congress, of course, have given satisfaction to their constituents and seem likely to remain here indefinitely, except for Mrs. Oldfield, who is understood to plan to retire. One only points out that the deaths of their husbands presented an opportunity for coming here which they would not otherwise have had and so considerably swelled the number of women members in the last Congress.

Of the "Three Ruths," Pratt is the only one whose husband or father did not make a name for himself in national politics. Mrs. Pratt turned to politics on her own. She had several children, but was wealthy enough to afford the time. She became an associate Republican leader in the Fifteenth Assembly district of New York City and in 1925 became the first woman to be elected to the New York Board of Aldermen. As an alderman — or alderwoman — she served with distinction and her voice was heard frequently.

In the few short weeks wherein she has had an opportunity to show her stuff in Washington, the New York Ruth has distinguished herself principally by her fight against the increase in the sugar tariff as proposed in the bill passed by the House.

"The sugar industry in this country cannot possibly expand to a point where it can even begin to supply our needs," she says. "The cane growers are limited by climate and the beet growers by the employment problem."

Mrs. McCormick is the daughter of Mark Hanna and the widow of the late Senator Medill McCormick, and Mrs. Owen is the daughter of William Jennings Bryan, but although both have long been identified by the relationships neither is here on that basis. Both went out and won nomination and election on their own merits. Neither stepped into a husband's or a father's seat. Both are capable women and both were in public life long before they ran for Congress. Now each is standing on her own feet and neither is known first of all as the daughter of Hanna or Bryan.

FACES A REAL BATTLE
The prestige and ability of both these women is best indicated by Mrs. McCormick's candidacy for the Senate and the persistent and undebated report that Mrs. Owen is going to announce her own when the time comes.

Mrs. McCormick's fight comes first. Mrs. Owen can't run until 1932, which is when the term of Senator

LITTLE JOE

Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida expires.

Mrs. McCormick has a real battle on her hands, but she has already achieved more in political struggle than any other woman because she is the only congresswoman-at-large, which means that her candidacy went before the whole state of Illinois instead of only a single congressional district.

Mrs. Owen is engaged in selling herself to Florida by giving a demonstration of super-efficiency in her own district. Any congressman's job depends importantly on keeping his own constituents happy, and Mrs. Owen, by dint of personal effort here, a summer program of speeches and some unique arrangements for keeping in constant contact with them, ought soon to have hers in a state of ecstasy.

FIND TRACES OF STRANGE, ANCIENT RACE OF INDIANS

Legends of Piute Indians
Come True When Cave
Gives Up Evidence

BY AL H. MARTIN
Copyright 1929, By Cons. Press

Reno, Nev.—Long told legends of the Piute Indians that the Nevada desert was peopled by a strange and war race thousands of years ago have been in part confirmed by archaeological discoveries in a cave in the Humboldt mountains, 22 miles from the town of Lovelock.

Explorers have found thousands of articles left by this forgotten people, including skillfully woven baskets, flint knives, hatchets and arrowheads, fur blankets and trinkets made from the bones of deer. Among the most beautiful and interesting objects found were several decoy ducks, fashioned with amazing artistry from feathers and tulle.

Everything found in the cave indicates the ancient people had attained a high state of culture, and that their knowledge of basket weaving antedated the Pueblo civilization by many hundred years. Among the products of their art and craft were found several mummified skeletons, usually buried with their possessions and wrapped in nets.

Numerous blankets, woven from the skins of meadow mice, were uncovered, together with bows and arrows and other weapons of war and the chase. Most of the relics have been removed to the museum of Anthropology at the University of California, but prospectors and desert wanderers tell of similar caves in the isolated Humboldt mountains that show evidence of being the last refuge of the mysterious race. Many of these caves are marked by drawings, crude pictures and strange characters on surrounding cliffs and canyon walls.

All the articles found in the great cave were in an excellent state of preservation, sealed from the ravages of time by the dry climate and protecting dust of the eternal desert. The Piutes for generations have

AMELIA EARHART IS GIVEN TRANSPORT JOB

New York—(AP)—Amelia Earhart, first woman transatlantic air passenger, Monday was appointed assistant general manager of traffic of Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc. T. B. Clement, general manager of the corporation, in announcing the appointment, said she would advise concerning luxuries, refreshments and comforts which women demand on planes. She will be a passenger on the flight inaugurating the service on July 7.

handed down the legend of a red-haired people that dominated the desert region in the long ago, when land was dotted by broad lakes, pleasant rivers and rich verdure. The legend says these people drew upon themselves the wrath of neighboring Indian tribes by raiding their lodges and carrying their young women into captivity. Some of the most beautiful of the Indian girls, so the legend goes, were destined to become the wives of the red-haired warriors, others doomed to be slaves to the women of the strange people.

Some legends assert the red-haired people were cannibals, others that they were great hunters and lived largely on the game and fish they took in forests and waters.

Finally, it is told, the cruelty and greed of the fiery haired raiders brought down upon them the vengeance of the Indians. After many great battles they were driven into the caves of the Humboldt Range, and when they refused to surrender they were exterminated by fire.

So runs the ancient lore of the Piutes, and the discoveries in the great cave convince scientists that there is more to the legendary tales than mere fancy.

MAKE THE FOURTH SANE

Four persons were killed, three being burned beyond recognition, and three others seriously injured, when fireworks on display in a St. Louis store exploded without warning. Other casualties of a like nature will mark the celebration of the Fourth with fire crackers, torpedoes, toy pistols, roman candles, etc. Children will be killed here and there throughout the country; others will be blinded or maimed for life. In the last twenty years we have made great progress toward a safe and sane Fourth of July, but even the reduced casualty list continues to be a national scandal. The indiscriminate sale to and use by the public of fireworks is nothing but surrender to political and commercial greed. It is not essential to a patriotic observance of the anniversary of Independence day. Rather it is a public menace and a public nuisance.

Notwithstanding we have laws and ordinances in Wisconsin which prohibit the sale or shooting of fire works within city limits before the Fourth of July, they are flagrantly violated and police departments make little or no effort to suppress them. Their people are annoyed for days before the Fourth by explosions at all hours of the day and night. The county permits the opening of fireworks stands immediately on the outskirts of the city so that its ordinances which prohibit sale are nullified, and there are always parents indifferent to the rights of others that permit their children to buy and fire these explosives prior to the Fourth.

It is a situation that grows more intolerable and inexorable year after year. Michigan has met it by prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks altogether. Firecrackers and explosives are outlawed in that state. Other states will follow suit and in time the commercializing of the Fourth for a few million dollars of profit will be done away with. Fireworks displays will be confined to municipal and other specified agencies, and the senseless practices of today, with their trail of killed, injured and irritated nerves, will be ended. We shall content ourselves by celebrating the Fourth like rational human beings and instead of a fifth of July to both welcome and mourn, there will be a Fourth to enjoy.

WABASH APPLICATION

Application of a fifth independent trunk railway system operating between the Atlantic seaboard and the central West, based on the Wabash lines, has been filed with the Interstate Commerce commission. It contemplates unification of 7,044 miles of railroads with a capital of $950,642,963. The plan comprises control of eight roads, either under lease or by stock purchase or other manner, but it is not proposed to consolidate these carriers into one system for ownership or operation. It involves simply centralization of control.

The petition sets forth that the system would be strong enough to stand alone in competition and that it would be adapted to meet increasing transportation problems. It is contended that the plan conforms with the intent of congress in the enactment of the transportation act and the government's invitation to consolidate.

The merits of the Wabash application rest of course upon a scientific and technical understanding of the transportation facilities as a whole. It is a matter for the Interstate Commerce commission to determine rather than public opinion. Up to this time the commission has been highly critical in its consideration of petitions of this nature. Its attitude has tended to discourage rather than promote them. This factor does not however negative the broad proposition that consolidation are badly needed if the country is to advance its transportation econ-my and efficiency. The waste, cost, inefficiency and inconsistency of the existing set-up are a heavy strain on the nation's commerce.

CARIBBEAN NAVAL BASES

There is discussion both in Washington and London of the possibility of Great Britain abolishing its naval bases on the Caribbean seas. The story is to the effect that the idea has been advanced privately in influential quarters in England as a friendly gesture toward the United States that would bring larger returns in good-will than can ever be expected from the use of these bases in war.

Whether or not Great Britain ultimately cedes its possessions in the West Indies to the United States, there would seem to be no point in their continued fortification, particularly in view of the Kellogg treaty and the movement for disarmament. So long as Great Britain had rights or possessions in Latin-America that could be upheld only by force there was possible justification in maintaining fortified bases at strategic points. It is pretty well settled today, however, that England does not challenge the Monroe doctrine and that the protection of her interests in this hemisphere does not depend upon military strength in American waters. Furthermore, the presence of West Indian bases are a potential threat to the Panama canal and are more or less a source of irritation in the United States, particularly to our "hundred percenters."

National self-interest would therefore appear to advise Great Britain to abandon these fortifications, which would mean giving up nothing of actual value and gaining very much in both material and moral values. As an exhibition of peaceful intent toward the United States it would be of first importance and it could hardly fail to soften prejudices still existing in both nations. Possibly, too, demilitarizing of the British West Indies would pave the way to their cession to the United States.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

Prominent in the news dispatches touching prohibition is the report from Washington that Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of customs, prohibition and coast guard activities, will shortly resign at the expressed or implied wish of President Hoover. The president is said to favor less spectacular methods of enforcement. It is well known that some of the recent exploits of the Lowman department involving taking of life and international incidents have been viewed with disfavor in the White house. The recent order forbidding the use of the sawed-off shotguns and restricting employment of firearms generally was due to presidential demand.

The discovery just the other day of a scheme to permit the federal government to experiment in educating children to prohibition was another manifestation of zeal which drew executive disfavor. While education, which necessarily must commence with the young generations, is the real approach to the liquor problem and conversion of the people to temperance, there apparently was the feeling that federal activities under existing conditions might be arbitrary and fanatical.

Mr. Hoover appears to want rational and restricted enforcement rather than spectacular and brutal, and feels that it can be made even more effective. Doubtless he sees himself embarrassed by a record and policy of enforcement which has met with almost universal condemnation and from which it is possible to depart only by a thorough reorganization of machinery and personnel. The country will approve measures in this direction.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman says dry agents are within their rights if they shoot at the tires of a suspected car. If you happen to get hit, of course, that's just a little mistake.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Every day, excepting Sundays, an average of $15,000,000 is carried through New York streets for the city's banks.

Fifteen million dollars in coin and currency! What look a mere hundredth of that sum would be for a gang to grab.

But the gangsters who walk the streets through which this fortune passes daily, gangsters who would shoot a man for a thousandth part of it, don't dare to try a hold-up.

They know that inside each armored truck three guards ride, ready to pour tear gas and machine gun bullets through turret slits at the slightest sign of attack.

HAULING CITY'S TREASURE

Every morning the armored cars draw up to the Federal Reserve bank on Maiden Lane, just off Wall street.

Out of each jumps a guard, hand on automatic pistol. He takes his place at the bank door.

Another guard stands outside the truck door. The third, the conductor, steps lightly into the bank and returns with a bag containing perhaps a million dollars in currency—the day's needs of an untown institution.

The lookout follows him back to the truck, the door is slammed shut and the bullet proof car rolls away to its destination.

There the observer again leaps out, looks around and signals to the guard inside. The latter takes his post at the open truck door and the conductor delivers his treasure between the two who stand watch. If it's a big job, such as the moving of an entire bank, a machine gun is posted across the street where it can sweep the field of action. Under such protection millions are transferred in a few minutes.

THIEF-PROOF

In addition to withdrawals and deposits of cash at the Federal Reserve bank, made daily to save interest, the armored cars and their hard-boiled crews handle many millions in payrolls.

W. R. Huntington, vice-president of the trucking corporation, does not know exactly how much money his men transport, nor do they. The same precautions are taken whether the shipment is a $250 payroll or a million dollar deposit. Each car is insured for $5,000,000 and the crew is bonded for the same amount.

There are 76 cars in the fleet, 30 of which are used for the daily trips between banks. These are manned by some 300 picked sharpshooters, who keep trigger-fingers in condition at their own private pistol range. Each car is tested under gunfire. Each man's past is thoroughly investigated before he is hired.

The fleet's biggest job since its first car was launched in 1925 was the moving of $4,000,000,000 in cash and bullion from the old Federal Reserve vaults to the bank's new building. The next largest was the moving of the Chase National bank into its new quarters.

Five hundred banks are served regularly by the motorized vaults, and 3,000 industrial or business houses. The latter do not even have to make up their own payrolls. The trucking corporation does that, too, in an armored room at headquarters downtown.

GARFIELD SHOT

On July 2, 1881, President James A. Garfield was shot and fatally wounded by Charles J. Guiteau, a man whose vanity had been offended by the refusal of an office and whose unbalanced brain had been excited by dissension in the Republican party.

The crime, which took place in the railway station at Washington, excited the horror and execration of all parties alike; and foreign nations joined in the universal sorrow and indignation.

For eight days after the shooting, Garfield lingered between life and death. Toward the end of August, his medical attendants felt his last chance of recovery depended upon removal from the malarious climate of Washington.

On September 8, he was taken by train to Elberon, N. J., where he died 13 days later on the 19th.

The assassin was convicted after a protracted trial in which the only defense offered was that of insanity. Guiteau was hanged in the jail at Washington June 30, 1882.

President Garfield was born in Cuyahoga county, Ohio, in 1831 and was the twentieth president of the United States.

CHRONIC CARBON MONOXIDE POISONING

Dr. C. P. Fordyce reported an instructive case of chronic carbon poisoning to the Nebraska State Medical association the other day.

The patient, a garage worker, complained that he felt below par, had headache, dizziness, nausea, and especially in winter in the garage, heated by a coal stove, sometimes half a dozen engines were running at one time, and there was no ventilation except the occasional opening of the door. Several times, the patient said, the "smoke had almost got him."

On examination the first thing noticed was a peculiar pallor. This is a characteristic sign of chronic carbon monoxide gas poisoning. The victim looked anemic, but on testing the blood Dr. Fordyce found 4,500,000 red corpuscles per cu. millimeter (4,000,000 is a normal count) and 90 per cent hemoglobin—and that, too, is approximately normal.

In many instances of chronic carbon monoxide poisoning the red corpuscles are as high as 6,000,000 and the hemoglobin estimation runs from 90 to 120 per cent of the arbitrary standard.

Mathematical critics please overlook the 130 parts per hundred—maybe I don't mean that but ordinary folk will know what I mean.) The odd appearance of pallor, in spite of an excess of red corpuscles and iron coloring matter in the blood, is probably due to a peculiar disturbance of the skin circulation by the poison, and the increased number of red corpuscles is a compensatory reaction—the carbon monoxide crowds oxygen out of combination in the hemoglobin of the red corpuscles, and the marrow of the bone produces profusely structures throw fresh red cells into the circulation to take up the oxygen carrying function.

Dr. Fordyce gave a simple, rapid and fairly accurate clinical test by which the physician may detect carbon monoxide in the blood.

The patient was advised to rest from work for two weeks. Then another blood examination showed normal blood. The man installed an exhaust fan in his shop, and has enjoyed good health since.

Here is an excellent suggestion for all garage workers—exhaust fan vents will carry out the poisonous carbon monoxide which is always a menace to health in the winter months and sometimes a menace to life itself. A man exposed for an hour or longer to a concentration of 10 parts of monoxide in 10,000 parts of air is likely to suffer nausea and headache, when the concentration reaches 15 parts in 10,000 parts of air, life is endangered. The exhaust from a gas engine might easily produce such concentrations of carbon monoxide in the air of an unventilated enclosure in a few minutes.

QUESTION AND ANSWERS
You Learn Health at the San

In a recent sojourn in a tuberculosis sanatorium I was much impressed by the interest patients acquire in public health. If a patient coughed, sneezed or even cleared his throat without covering nose and mouth, he was subject to reprimand in the form of a severe lecture on the prevention of infection. In contrast I am surprised to observe people in church, riding on the cars, and everywhere, deliberately coughing, hawking or sneezing without concern about covering the nose and mouth. Is there no way to stop this dangerous practice? (T. E. M.)

Answer—Only by the slow process of education. I see you are public health authorities do not yet grasp the significance of all this spraving of one another, and so they see no occasion for passing an ordinance against spitting on the floor or even on the street but it is all right with them if you want to spit in your neighbor's face. That isn't like spitting on the floor, you know, it is so finely divided and all that. Besides, the best people do it. Spitting on the floor is just, but where should we draw the line in reference to spraying one another? We could hardly prohibit open face sneezing or coughing if the individual is a mile away from other persons. If we try to set an arbitrary limit on the proximity of the cougher or sneezer to other persons we get into difficulties at once. The sneeze or cough spray carries 10 to 12 feet. But ordinary conversation spray carries four to five feet. It will hardly do to recognize sneeze or cough spray more definitely than we have done in our casual hints that people shouldn't perpetrate uncovered sneezes or coughs on their neighbors. At all times we public health guardians must avoid recognition of the danger of conversational spray, or warning the public about its effective range.

Whose Work Is Never Done?
I have a large family of children and I found that in order to keep them and my house in good order I had to hustle 24 hours a day. I adopted a plan of timing my working hours. When I have put in 10 hours of work I quit, no matter what there is left to do. I leave it till tomorrow, and either rest, go visiting, or pursue my favorite hobby. This system solves my problem. I'm feeling fine, thank you! (Mrs. C. D.)

Answer—The children are in luck. A 10 hour day will keep mother working for 'em longer than a 16 hour day can.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — There's an historical mansion on H street at Madison place which daily is growing in popularity among high government officials as a rendezvous.

In the distant past it was the home of Dolly Madison. For more than a quarter century it has housed the Cosmos club, one of the capital's most exclusive male organizations.

It is composed of men who have done meritorious work in science, literature or the fine arts; those who have distinguished themselves in a learned profession or in public service, and those who, though not occupied in these fields, are well known to be cultivated in a specific department thereof.

The club was organized in 1878. Its membership includes artists, scientists and savants famous in all parts of the world.

SLB ROSA CABINET
There was a time when the Cosmos club was regarded as the unofficial headquarters of the administration. This was during the presidency of Woodrow Wilson.

Many of the war president's leading were members. Franklin K. Lane, Charles R. Crane, Newton D. Baker, David F. Houston, economists, sociologists, college professors—these types were common in the Wilson administration. The Cosmos club was their natural habitat.

Then came the Harding Coolidge administrations. A different type of men composed the officialdom under these presidents. Bankers and business men were in control. Prosperity was the keynote.

But by the time the Cosmos club backed into obscurity as the government leaders foregathered in their leisure hours to the Metropolitan club, just beyond the opposite corner, The Metropolitan has been famous since its foundation for the wealth of its membership.

GLORY OF OLD
Now there are unmistakable signs that the Cosmos club is coming back into the glory it once knew. Officialdom, may be, is veering back to the club that President Hoover joined in 1921 when he was secretary of commerce.

There is Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur, the educator, a member since 1922. There is the political economist type in Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce. And there is the technically efficient engineering type.

Such men as these, holding important posts in the present administration, may be seen veering back to the parlors or at round tables in the dining room at noon at the Cosmos club these days.

Some of them still refer to the President as "chief" with the same enthusiasm and affection they did when he was secretary of commerce. The writer hears that more than one important administration project is conceived or planned at these little gatherings.

And when no task is immediately at hand, an agreeable hour is spent in talking about the "chief" and what he is doing.

FLASHES FROM HOLLYWOOD

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — Here's a grow to native sons and daughters.

No less a director than Fred Niblo comes forward, just before packing up for a long vacation trip, with the assertion that of all American accents, that of California conversation is most difficult for the movie microphone to record!

This western accent, broader and flatter than that of the south or even the New England "twang," he defines as "starting at the Mississippi river and infesting the west."

But for all that, "this mode of speech is still preferable to broken foreign accents," he concludes.

And what is the ideal accent? Niblo believes it is that of the New York speaking stars who "dropped" from London stage conversation.

"East of Chicago," he says, "one hears the language spoken correctly, without being stilted. Some actors are Anglomaniacs with their affectation. But as examples of correctly spoken English, I consider the speech of Ruth Chatterton and Jeanne Eagles representative of the finest."

NOW FOR U. S.

Niblo, by the way, is "seeing America last" on his vacation trip. The director, who just completed his first talkie, "Redemption," with John Gilbert as the star, has visited many foreign countries in the course of picture-making.

Now he and Mrs. Niblo, Enid Bennett) are undertaking a 7,000-mile motor tour through the great parks and cities of America and Canada. They are taking turns driving and are photographing scenes along the route — what can be done about a director who won't forget pictures even while on his first vacation in three years?

He expects to be on the lookout for possible future "location" for movies.

NOTES AT RANDOM

Hollywood's social life struggles on despite the handicap of many "missing persons"—players missing from parties because they are working night hours or are engrossed in a bug study for the next day. But there are lots of fine folk "between pictures" and the "missing" are usually different ones at different parties.

Little Douglas Scott, aged three, curly-haired cherub of the lots and a most precocious child... talks like a grown-up. William de Mille's old felt hat, mangled and decrepit, which he still wears for good luck while directing, and cherishes so highly he won't hang it up, but sits on it when lugging it. And Brother Cecil's old green overcoat, also cherished sentimentally. A silent picture is being made in Hollywood and the set looks strangely strange!

CHAIRMAN TO BE ON DUTY TILL DEC 31

Administrative Life of Group Expires on That Date

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright 1929 By Cons. Press
Washington—Judge Ira E. Robinson, of West Virginia, chairman of the federal radio commission, will continue in that office until Dec. 31, when the administrative life of the commission automatically expires. Since the commission reorganized a month ago the problem of selecting a chairman has confronted it. Chairman Robinson, who has served in that office since his appointment in March a year ago, it was thought, would relinquish that post to one of the two other Republican members of the commission. At an executive meeting, however, the commission decided that under the law and the rules of the commission, no limitation on the tenure of office of the chairman is imposed. It also was ruled that there could be no election of a chairman until it had been decided by a majority vote that this office was vacant. No such motion had been made to the commission.

RENOMINATED
Last February President Coolidge nominated the new commission re-naming Judge Robinson, Commissioner E. O. Sykes and Commissioner Harold A. Lafount for the second, third and fifth zones, respectively. He also nominated Prof. C. M. Jansky Jr., of Minneapolis, for the fourth zone post, in succession to Sam Pickard, resigned, and Arthur Batcheller, of Boston, for the first zone assignment to succeed commissioner O. H. Caldwell, resigned. The senate declined to confirm the nominations of the Jansky and Batcheller, and Major Gen. Charles McSaltzman, retired, and William D. L. Starbuck subsequently were nominated by President Hoover and confirmed.

QUESTION AROSE
When the new commission took office in May the chairmanship question immediately arose, but nothing was done about it. Since the commission under the law is to lose its administrative authority at the end of the year, unless congress again extends it, the thought is that the selection of a new chairman will come up at that time.

In deciding that the chairmanship should remain status quo, the commission at the same time effected assignments of specific functions to each commissioner. Commissioner Starbuck was given charge of publicity; Commissioner Saltzman of the engineering division; Commissioner Lafount of personnel, and Commissioner Sykes of the legal division. In the legal division there have been several changes since the Hoover administration took over. Bethuel M. Webster, Jr., special assistant to the attorney general was appointed general counsel, succeeding Louis G. Caldwell, who resigned. Paul M. Segal, of Denver, a radio amateur as well as an attorney, was designated assistant general counsel. The third acquisition in the legal division was Paul D. E. Spearman of Jackson, Miss., former counsel for the Mississippi Utilities commission.

LITTLE CHANGE
The only other material changes in the commission's make-up has been the appointment of Frank Lovette of Elizabethton, Tenn., newspaper publisher, to be assistant secretary of the commission. He succeeded G. Colby Blackwell, who became executive assistant and liaison officer of the engineering division. In the engineering division Capt. Guy Hill of the Army Signal corps, remains as acting chief engineer. He had been ordered to return to duty with the signal corps, but at the request of the commissioner his or-

New York—Battle lines may now be said to be drawn for general control between the various railroad interests in eastern trunk line territory. This has been made apparent by the filing with the interstate commerce commission of the request of the Wabash railroad to weld together 14 separate roads into a fifth trunk line system.

It is generally known that the Van Sweringen interests controlling the Chesapeake and Ohio, Nickel Plate, Erie, Pere Marquette and other roads, and the Baltimore and Ohio system feel that the move of the Wabash is a piece of strategy intended to hamper all eastern trunk line consolidation. Some experts express the belief that the Wabash plan was not necessarily designed to meet approval of the government body but was a monkey wrench thrown into the machinery of the plans of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Chesapeake and Ohio.

DENIES MOVE
The Pennsylvania railroad has strenuously denied that it has sponsors were changed to permit its continuance as acting chief engineer. George O. Sutton and Franklin Y. ## HUNT MAN WHO TRIED TO BURN BUILDINGS

Regina, Sask.—(AP)—An incendiary who attempted to burn the provincial parliament buildings but only succeeded in damaging the massive oak doors was being sought today by Royal Canadian Mounted and local police.

A physician shortly after midnight Saturday detected the flames shooting up from the doors. The blaze was extinguished by firemen who found that a can filled with kerosene and surrounded by oil-soaked waste and sacks had been set on fire.

On the stonework near the charred doors was found the words, "Gardiner and crime—get out," printed in red chalk. James G. Gardiner is premier of Saskatchewan. The police theory is that the fire was set by unemployed who at conferences with representatives of the government on Friday and Saturday were not given the employment they sought.

Supervisor Sylvester Adriano denounced the whole prohibition movement as an "evil tree, conceived in fanaticism and reared in corruption, whose fruits are murder, perjury, lawlessness and hypocrisy."

ENJOY FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Flavored With Sugar They Are Delicious and Healthful

"My first rule for healthful eating," said one of the foremost food scientists in this country, "would be to insist on at least one dish of raw vegetable salad and at least one raw fruit every day."

"My second rule would be very similar—to eat at least one cooked vegetable and one cooked fruit every day. You can vary the fruits and vegetables according to the season, their price, and your taste."

His next remark emphasized the value of sugar in making fruits and vegetables so palatable that people would eat them, not simply for their beneficial results, but for general enjoyment of their flavors. "Sugar," he explained, "is the greatest of all condimental foods. It brings out the natural flavor of fruits and vegetables."

It is important that people enjoy the food they eat. Otherwise they will not eat a varied enough diet. Sugar, one of nature's most perfect flavors, plays a part in making almost all the foods we eat more inviting.

A pinch of sugar improves the flavor of nearly every vegetable. Remember a dash of sugar in cereal, in tea or coffee, in all milk drinks. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

THE NEW Saint Sinner

By Anne Austin

BUT if Colin Grant was afraid of being fired, he did not look it. He tore the sheet of paper out of his typewriter, scanned the half dozen sentences with disgust, crumpled the typewriter and tossed it to the door. Then he leaned far back in his chair, clasping his thin long-fingered brown hands behind his touselled black head, and regarded his city editor with a quizzical, challenging grin that made him look suddenly very young. Crystal had placed his age at about thirty, but now she was not sure....

"Why he repeated Harry's question lazily. "That's simple. I forgot all about the blasted Peabody divorce case."

Crystal was amazed at the way Harry Blaine kept his temper. "The Sun has the whole yarn, Colin. Made us look like two cents. You knew I was counting on you, and that there's going to be a pretty nasty time for me when Horton sees The Sun—"

"Sorry, old man. I haven't any excuse. I tell you, I simply forgot all about it. Got all fussed up over a short story, but that's neither here nor there, is it? You are giving me the works, I take it?" Colin Grant answered, but he seemed not in the least depressed. Excited and glad, rather. Crystal was hopelessly bewildered....

"You know I'm not — not yet," Harry Blaine amazed her by retorting angrily, but with a queer note of pleading in his voice. "I'll fix it up with Horton somehow—"

"Why?" Colin Grant asked lazily, a sardonic smiling jerking at the corners of his wide, dark-red mouth. Harry Blaine answered with low-voiced fury: "You know why, Colin. Because you're the best newspaper man that ever hit this town or any other town — when you want to be, and I'm not going to let you blow this job as easy as you think. You've thrown me down today, and because I know you're decent enough to feel ashamed of yourself, I'm going to make you promise to stick to the job a month longer, at least—"

"A month?" The reporter who wanted to be fired was startled, angry. Crystal thought he looked, for a moment, like a wild animal aware of a trap. "Good Lord, Blaine, you know I can't hang around Stanton for another month! I'll make it a week."

A week, a week! It was like a reprieve from death for Crystal. In a week anything, everything might happen.

"The Harmon murder trial opens Wednesday," Harry reminded him cunningly. "Just your meat. I'd rather have you covering it than any other man in the country—"

"A week," Colin Grant repeated implacably. "Now, for the Lord's sake, shut up and let me try to nail this story that's driving me nuts. It's going to be a war if I can get it down on paper, Harry." And his two forefingers began to WELL, now I'm stuffed," the scarecrow cried. "And I'm all set to run outside and scare those shining eyes away. I'll bet they'll soon be gone. Right now I'm big enough to feel that I can stage a battle real. Or maybe 'twould be wiser if I'd wait until the dawn."

"Well, very frankly, that plan's good," said Scouty. "And I think you should stay right with us within this cave until it's broad daylight. Who ever owns those brilliant eyes might be at least three times your size. In that case 'twouldn't be so well for you to start a fight."

The scarecrow then sat down to him, while waiting for the dawn to come. All of a sudden Cloway cried. "Oh, look! It's getting bright outside. Go right ahead there, scarecrow man, and see what's outside, if you peck again, rapidly, happily. There was pale excitement on his long, thin face, and something like ecstatic fury. The girl and the city editor had ceased to exist for him.

"Well, Cryst! Harry Blaine closed the assignment book with a bang and rose from his desk. "What are you hanging around here for? Want to go out for a sandwich and cup of coffee with your city editor?"

can. If it's too big for you to fight, come back in here and hide."

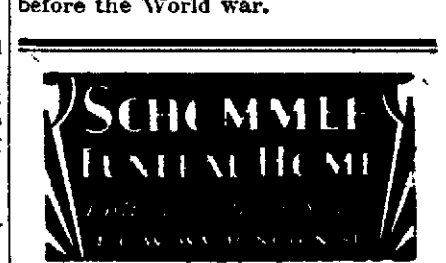

And, as the scarecrow started out, he heard kind little Coppy about. "Oh, please, be very careful so you will not come to harm. If you get into trouble, shout, and we will all come running out. I surely hope there is no cause for any great alarm."

The Tynies watched the scarecrow go. Then suddenly someone yelled. "Oh, a great big bear is right near by. The shining eyes were his. The old scarecrow won't have a chance. The bear will likely make him dance. It is a nerve task he's trying. He'll find out it is."

But Mister Scarecrow didn't care. He walked up bravely to the bear and said, "Hello there, Bun! I am going to run you out." He then, with very clever haste, grabbed clumsy Bruin by the waist. In just about a moment it was like a wrestling bout.

NEW TARIFF BILL IS APT TO KICK UP FUSS FOR PRESIDENT

Hoover Has Had Fairly Smooth Sailing so Far, but Trouble Looms Now

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington — It does not yet seem to be settled whether President Hoover is making a large success to boom Congress or whether Congress has been running over the president. Nearly everyone who has written about this seems to have tried to prove one thing and another.

The important point is that if Hoover does as well in his relations with the legislative branch in the future as he has done to date, he will have little reason to complain. Unfortunately, there is reason to fear that his troubles have merely begun. The reason concerns the tariff.

Already the tariff problem has the president in something of a hole. It may not prove to be so much of a hole, or the president may jump out of it into what he considers a more favorable one, but the Democrats are hoping to convert it into a sucking quicksand.

DAZING SUBJECT

There is no more effective way for a president to get his feet wet than to allow a tariff revision to enter his administration. The revision now proposed by Republican leaders in both houses of Congress is the fourth in 20 years. The only one among the other three which is comparable to this one is that of 1910, which is often credited with wrecking the Taft administration and putting the Democrats back into power.

The Underwood tariff revision in the first Wilson administration was a revision downward; because of the World war no one knows just how it would have worked out. The Fordney-McCumber Act, passed early in the Harding administration, was a revision upward and there has been plenty of argument whether America's industrial prosperity of the last few years has been because of or in spite of it. Now comes an upward revision under what may be dominated as normal conditions and almost anything can happen.

Except for the tariff, neither President Hoover and the Republican party nor the country has found anything very new to worry about since March 4.

Hoover got his farm bill through as he wanted it, which is the main thing to consider, and whether the relief provided in the act will do any particular good is something to worry about later. On the other hand, hardly anyone ever supposed that the president would have difficulty in either house, such as developed with the senate's temporary revolt against passing the bill without the debt-reduction scheme in it.

BORAH'S DEFECTION EXPECTED

The loss of Senator Borah as a Hoover leader—a position he accepted during the campaign—was generally discounted in advance. Few expected that Borah would stay put for very long. And Hoover has demonstrated that in his army there is, as in the past, only one general—rest are lieutenants. Nevertheless, it was also expected that the old Progressive Democrat combination, which has so often sickened Republicans had not been killed by events of the campaign and final passage of the Farm bill doubtless found the president with mixed emotions.

He took a holding on the national origins legislation, but not any more of a liking than was needed to prove that the senate often disregards a president's wishes. The senate has always been like that and this was no serious defeat. Probably of even more significance was the fact that congress failed to appoint the congressional prohibition enforcement reorganization commission, which Hoover wants to move enforcement from the treasury to the justice department, although there is no great rush about that. The significance seems to lie in reports that action was deliberately omitted because Republican House leader Bert Smith was good and sore over presidential neglect regarding patronage in New York state.

HEARING FROM THE VOTERS

Now most members of congress are at home, hearing what the country thinks about the tariff bill which the house sent to the senate. It is too early to get a good idea what they are hearing, but there is plenty of reason for belief that the hard-bolled senate finance committee will produce an even stiffer bill. Already it has gone far beyond Hoover's expressed ideas of what a tariff bill ought to be.

Unless the senate tears the committee bill all to pieces, the president probably will have to act on a measure calculated to make his hair stand up. Whatever he does will be pretty certain to make trouble for him. He will simply have to decide which exit is likely to take off the least hair.

YOUNG PLAN MAY AFFECT U. S. DEBT

principles but now that such speedy retirement will hasten the day for a relief of the European government, it will be easier for the anti-European blocs in the American congress to raise the cry that the excess of receipts over expenditures should be refunded annually to taxpayers on a lower series of rates adopted.

It was not originally intended that the American war debt should be retired so quickly. The sinking fund provision in the Liberty loan acts was placed at $250,000,000 a year. But there have been additions annually out of surplus so that in some years nearly a billion dollars has been cut off the war debt.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

Secretary Mellon has insisted that this was wise because there was no telling what future years would bring in the way of savings and he thought, therefore, advantage would be taken of the surplus by retiring war debts. The announcement now of a big surplus instead of a narrow margin or deficit as was expected, carried the explanation that the stock market transactions were primarily responsible for the individual increases of income reflected in the piling up of tax receipts. Again the treasury hinted at a temporary or non-recurring reason. There is nevertheless an indication that the Democrats will force another tax reduction and it would not be surprising to see the treasury agree with the procedure rather than have congress try to limit the amount of money that can be applied to the sinking fund rebated. Mr. Mellon has seen every tax reduction law result in larger and larger receipts.

From a distance Europe will watch eagerly every step in American financial policy and may even applaud lower taxes if it begins to be apparent that their productivity is increased and surpluses are thereby piled up. Europe has become linked up at last to American income producers and can no longer frown at American prosperity for on its rapid growth depends the reduction in European tax burdens.

SEVEN WOUNDED IN MEXICANS' ATTACK

Mexico City —(P)—Dispatches to El Universal from Guadalajara today said seven persons were wounded at Atotonilco El Alto by a band of unidentified men who rode horseback into the main plaza at the promenade hour and fired into the crowds. They then rode away, with no explanation of their attack. Guadalajara dispatches to Excelsior said the "Cristero" leader, Gabino Flores, had surrendered to the government. Two other Cristero leaders, Carlos Bouquet and Jesus de Gollado, have fled toward the United States. De Gollado, recently proclaimed himself commander-in-chief of the so-called religious rebels, succeeding General Enrique Gorostiza, who was killed in action early in June.

NOMIS, MORRISON ARE FORCED DOWN AS MOTOR FAILS

Better Flying Weather in Prospect for Newcomb and Mitchell

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles, Calif.—(P)—The attempt of Leo Nomis and Maurice Morrison to establish a new record for endurance flying came to an exciting end here this morning when the motor of their tiny plane stopped 5,000 feet above the airport and they nosed down through a fog bank and crashed at the edge of the field.

Both fliers were cut about the face and head. Their injuries were dressed at the field, after which they declared they would take off again as soon as the plane could be fixed. They made their rough-landing at 1:05 a. m. after 41 hours and 35 minutes in the air.

Nomis said the wiring of the ignition system must have gone bad, as all the plane's lights went out when the engine stopped. The fog, hiding the landing field below, was blamed for the crash. Nomis praised the coolness and ability of Morrison, who was at the controls.

The high fog had settled close to the ground shortly before the plane was forced to land, and the fliers said they were on the ground before they knew it.

"We must have skidded a hundred feet or more on the fuselage, before we stopped," Nomis said. "Morrison and I were thrown forward by the impact and we got a good bump when our heads struck the cowlings."

Nomis said that only a few minutes before, they had circled over Los Angeles and Hollywood, and pointed out that they were fortunate the motor did not quit on them before they reached the landing field again.

The fliers were still optimistic over the prospects of setting a new record, and said they would be back in the air again in three or four days, depending on how seriously the plane was damaged. They hope to surpass the record of 172 hours, 32 minutes and 1 second held by Reginald Robbins and James Kelly of Fort Worth, Texas.

BETTER FLYING WEATHER

Cleveland, O.—(P)—Better flying weather than has been granted endurance fliers Byron K. Newcomb and Roy L. Mitchell, since they set out last Friday to break the world's record for sustained flight was forecast for the next 24 hours today as they passed the half way mark in the attempt.

Fog, which reduced visibility to a matter of a few feet had disappeared, a low ceiling of heavy clouds had lifted and clear weather, with moderate winds, promised more favorable conditions than the airmen have experienced since they took off Friday afternoon. They are flying against time with almost three days to go if they are to break the recognized mark of 172 hours 32 minutes and 30 seconds.

With improved flying conditions, the spirits of the pilots rose, and in their notes they expressed confidence that they will be able to remain aloft "for a long, long time."

Ernest R. Basham, pilot of the refueling plane, which has been dubbed "the flying milk wagon" declared the two men were more cheerful than they had been since the first weariness of the long grind, and the discouraging weather conditions which marked the first two days of the attempt had struck them.

They had a hearty greeting from Helen O'Connell, student pilot who served with the refueling crew of three which handles the hose line through which gasoline is transferred to the tanks of the endurance plane. Mitchell piloted the ship within a few feet of the refueling plane when they saw her standing in the door of the cabin and they gave her cheerful greetings, she said. They seemed fresh and appeared clean-shaved and rested, she declared.

Army Service Flying Rule Keeps Ships In Air Right After Tragedies

Roosevelt Field, N. Y. — (P)—Everybody is doing all the flying he can these days at Roosevelt and Mitchell fields and all the pilots and mechanics and officials have developed a manner that is elaborately casual.

But underneath all this activity and through the laughter—the sort of laughter that curls up the corners of the mouth but leaves little furrows between the eyebrows—is visible a deadly seriousness, a kind of mental tightening of the belt.

There have been four crashes here at the Long Island fields since last Wednesday. Seven persons have been killed, including two of the most popular pilots along the Atlantic seaboard.

Friday morning it was Jack Ashcraft, desperately trying to land his way down with empty gas tanks through fog that dropped its deadly white curtain all the way down to the ground.

Yesterday it was "Bill" Stultz, transatlantic flier who was an honorary pallbearer at Ashcraft's funeral on Saturday.

In other hazardous professions, survivors are expected to be nervous, upset and unfit for work when one of their fellowworkers is killed. When a workman falls off a steel skyscraper, for instance, everybody lays off for the remainder of the day.

But aviation is not like that. There is, for instance, that rule in the army flying service whereby a pilot, if he comes out of a crash alive and not badly injured, immediately takes up another ship and flies it until he is all cured of his "nerves."

It was that rule that made Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, with one arm in a sling, take his lancee up for another ride the very next day after their accident in Mexico City last winter.

And so, all day yesterday at Roosevelt and Mitchell fields, airplanes zoomed up again and again off the sooty, rumpstuck field. And so the grim jokes go on.

"It's your turn next and then mine," one pilot will say to another and then they both grin.

"Hey, hey, it's the good old jinks," they tell each other over hot dogs in the canteen, but it's tough as hell on the ships.

And jokes are elaborate farewells and jokes about funeral arrangements as they take off.

At times there is an irritability along with the humor. One of the stories going about the fields is that, after there had been two crashes in the neighborhood on Friday, an official called a certain young million into his office and "just to relieve his feelings, gave him a white of a bawling-out for every careless stunt he'd ever pulled."

And when Milton Jensen, forced down from his endurance flight Saturday night, bitterly upbraided the crew of his refueling plane as he eluded out of his cabin hazard and time and deaf from the roar of the motor, he was answered just as sharply as he had spoken at the moment of his disappointment.

Aviation—that's what pilots crave in times like these. Activity and all the notes that can be mastered up.

They found one other pilot in the afternoon when the doctors called on a blood transfusion for Victor Gentry, in Nassau hospital as a result of the crash in which Ashcraft was killed. So many pilots and mechanics are rushed into the hospital in answer to that call that attendants lost count of the number.

"It's so awful not to be able to do anything to help him and to just have to stand around here like this and wait," said Elmer Smith who, being a girl, cannot be quite so consistent in his casual is some of the men.

Farmers of China are beginning to use Diesel engines for irrigation. London will spend $11,500,000 on new municipal homes for workers.

Testimony of Former Turnkey and of Walter Scherck Involve Sheriff discharged the prisoners when the sheriff gave me permission to, when they came in saw that they were taken care of, if they were sick to get the doctor.

Q. Did you have anything to do with feeding the prisoners?

A. I saw they got their meals, sure.

Q. Those were your official duties in connection with the office?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you state to the Court just how it came about that Sheriff Giese approached you relative to securing additional fee in addition to your salary?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. When was that?

A. About the middle of January around the 10th or 12th, we will be safe in saying about the middle of January.

Q. After you had been sworn in as a deputy sheriff?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you relate the first conversation you had with Mr. Giese or Mr. Giese had with you at the time?

A. One afternoon he came up to the office and he said, "Dan, close the window and the door so no one will hear us." He said, "Well, he says, if we pull the window down, we can both make some money." I stopped a minute and I said, "Fred I don't want to do that." He said I should think it over and let him know. I went out of the room and a few days later he came back and brought the same subject up again. I said I didn't like the looks of the thing and I didn't want to do anything like that. He said, "If you don't like to do it I will get somebody that will do it for you. I like it and I don't want to do it. But finally I told him I would do it. He said, 'That's fine, are you on the square with me? Let's shake hands on it.' Then he said the slot machine operators should be making a good piece of money and that both of us should get a good piece of money from them. He said he would get them to come to my office and I should handle them for him because he said it would look bad to have them come to his office. He said it would be safe if they came to the jail and saw me. I said, "Out of this money what will be my share of it?" He says, I get two thirds and you get one third of all we make. He said, "Is that agreeable to you?" and I says, "Yes." Several days passed and later I think Mr. Dietrich came over there and he rapped on the door and I went to the door and he said, "Is your name Kelly?" and I said yes. And he said he had been told by Sheriff Giese that he had been told by Sheriff Giese to come and see me that I wanted to talk to him. He said, "I am operating slot machines here in Outagamie county and I have a lot of them and the sheriff told me I should talk to you about it. He said, 'How much are you going to charge?' I suggested $75.00 and he said, 'No, that's too much.' I said, 'How much do you think you can pay, $50.00?' He said, 'I'll give you the money $100.00 and next month after I will give you $50.00, would that be agreeable to you?'

He didn't pay me that day but the first of the month he came in and gave me $50.00. He said, "This is between you and me." I said, "Don't do any business with the sheriff's office because he doesn't want anyone to go over there. I am handling this end of it for him. You keep away from the Sheriff's office." He said, "All right. The next man that came in was Lopas. He rang the bell and I went to the door and let him in. We went into my office and he said he had received a telephone call from me to see me from the sheriff. I said, "Did Fred call you and tell you to come to see me?" He said, "Yes." I told him to come on in. I went out of the sheriff's residence and called the sheriff up and I asked Fred if he had called Lopas and he said that it was all right to take care of him. I said, "All right." I went back in and right away Lopas said, "I have 15 or 20 slot machines operating in this county. How much is it going to cost me to operate them in your county?" I said, "Will you pay me $100.00?" I said, "That's too much." I said, "How about $75.00?" He said that was all right with him. I said, "When are you going to pay?" He said as long as it was near the middle of the month he would give me $20.00 for the remainder of the month. I said that was all right. He didn't have the cash with him but he gave me a check for $20.00 and I cashed that check and had it cashed. That night I gave the Sheriff the $20.00 and the sheriff gave me the $20.00 out of the $20.00. The next man that came over there was Charlie Faust. He didn't come down to see me until I went down to see him. We got his four machines over at his jail. When I saw Mr. Faust I said, "Charlie how much will you give me for the four machines?" He said, "How much are you asking?" I said, "$30.00 a piece." He said, "That's too much." I said all right if he want to buy them back I will keep them here. He finally said he would take them back. He said, "When can I get them?" I said, "either this afternoon or tonight." He said, "I am pretty busy this afternoon so he came up that evening and I helped him take the machines down and put them in his car. He gave me the keys and I opened up the machines and took out the money that was in them. There was between $30.00 and $35.00 out of the four machines. I had a cigar box where I had the nickels, dimes and quarters that I took from these machines. When Sheriff Giese came I showed it to him and he smiled and said, "That's fine work, keep it up." He opened up the box and picked up a hand full of the coins and he gave them to me and he said, "Here is your share." I said, "That's all right, you need the money more than I do." He went out and then later I got that $120.00 from Mr. Faust. He said, "From now on it will be $75.00 a month." He said, "All right." Ristau came to see me next. I asked him why he didn't come to see me before and he said he had had all his dealings with Fred personally. I had asked Fred about it and I said, "Fred why don't you let Ristau come to see me the way the others are doing. He said, 'I am handling Ristau myself.' I asked him if I would get my one third and him his two thirds from Ristau. Later I kept Fred and I said, "Fred as long as I have the others, want Ristau. He said, 'I will call Ristau up and that night he said, 'Ristau will be up sometime tomorrow. Be easy with him, he is a good fellow. Not more than $50.00, the rest are having to pay that much.' Ristau came up there about 1 o'clock or 1:30 in the afternoon. As soon as I let Ristau in he said, 'Is your name Kelly?' I told him it was and we went into my office. I closed the door and the window as usual and he said, 'Mr. Kelly, Fred says he will let me handle the machines. How much do you want?' I said, "How about $100.00?" He said, "That's too much." My machines don't bring in that much. I said, "How about $75.00?" He said then, "Didn't Fred tell you to be easy with the rest of them are paying, will you pay that much?" He said, "Yes." He paid me $75.00 right away there. That's the four operators. I guess we brought in around $50.00 a month and I said to Fred, "Why not leave the rest of the guys like the saloon keepers go?" He said, "No, you get the saloon keepers." I said, "Fred I can't drive a car" and he said, "don't worry about that, Lohar Kemp will drive one for you." I said, "who do you want us to get." He said these are the ones we want. Here are the names of some of them. Peter Vandervelden and Nick Leisch at Freedom, and there were more of them but I can't think of their names. I went out to see those guys and I went to Buss' place in Little Chicago.

I said, "My name is Kelly and I am deputy sheriff. I want to see you in the jail tomorrow." He was to come to see me and not the sheriff. I told him that we were working together and that he should come to see me. I told him to come to see me because the Sheriff didn't want to be bothered and was leaving this end of it to me. He said, "How much do you want?" I said, "$25.00." He said, "That's too much." He said how about $15.00 a month. We agreed on $15.00 a month. That's the guys who went after all the saloon keepers, all the same way.

Q. You saw several others?

A. Yes, I would say about 14 different saloon keepers all together. The 14 different guys all came in and some paid and some didn't pay until the first of the month and the others never came. I said, "Fred there is something wrong and they don't come in." He said, "Well this is pretty good anyway." I said, "Yes, but I bet they have been talking and I think it was a mistake to take in the saloon keepers. The first thing we know they will be getting affidavits against us." I worried and he worried and he plenty of too. I thought things out and we will say about three weeks ago he didn't say or didn't sleep. He came over to my office one morning and he said things were getting pretty hot and he wanted me to take a vacation. He said, "Well how would you like to take a trip out to the coast?" I said, "You mean for me to go out to the coast?" Yes, he said, "Dan I will give you $400.00 if you will leave for the coast." I said, "Fred, what are you going to do, double cross me and put the blame on me after I am gone?" He just said, "It will be best for you to go out to the coast and I will take care of things around here and it will all blow over and you can come back." He said I should think it over. I did think it over. The more I thought the more I was convinced that I wouldn't go out. It still kept getting hotter and hotter around here. And then I gave it up and about a week later on a Monday it was he came over to the office and he tore around and kept ringing the bell and ringing the bell nervous like.

He came into the office and he said, "Dan, it's hot." I said we were wrong in letting the saloon keepers in on this. Then he said, "Now, Dan, you had better leave." He said they will never suspect me of the things that didn't come to my office." I said, "No, Fred I won't. I left June 14 at 8:30 in the morning. Just as I was leaving he said, Dan here is $275.00, take it and leave at once for the coast. I took off my star and gave him my card, over at his office and left. I went to the barber shop and I said I would be back. I went to the barber shop and from there right to the district attorney's office and made my affidavit.

Q. Had you spoken to the District Attorney before you handed in your star?

A. Yes, I had.

Q. Was it after your conversation with Mr. Staid that you handed in your star to Mr. Giese?

A. Yes.

Q. How did it happen that Mr. Staid talked to you?

A. He called me up to his office.

Q. Who else was there at the office with Mr. Staid?

A. Mr. Longdorf.

Q. Now, when you got back from Mr. Staid's office to the jail what did Mr. Giese tell you?

A. I left Mr. Staid's office about

6 o'clock and I went down town. I was sort of afraid to go back to the jail. When the call came Mr. Giese said, "Go Dan, get down there and see what they want and come right back here and tell me all." I didn't get back until 8 o'clock. He was in the office going through the drawers and such and kept looking around. He said, "What did they do?" I said, "I didn't tell Mr. Staid anything because I didn't want him to get sore at me. I said, 'I didn't say a thing.' He said, 'Don't you say anything to anybody. We are the only ones that know anything about this. Just me and two, that's all.' I said, 'Fred, I am going to leave.' I told him that that night. He said, 'All right you can leave.' Lohar Kemp was in the office and Mr. Giese told Lohar to step out a minute that he wanted to talk to me. He closed the door to the jail and the window as usual and he said, 'If you want to go to the coast tomorrow I still have the money.' He said, 'You go to bed and think it over and let me know what you want to do in the morning.' I went to bed and I thought and I thought and the more that I thought about it the more I thought I should stay here.

I kept thinking, 'I have got to stay here. I had already told Staid a lot of this stuff too. In the morning Giese asked me, 'Dan are you going away?' I said, 'I am leaving here.' He said, 'Dan when are you going away?' Dan here's the $275.00, take it and leave town.' He said, 'There is nobody that knows about this but you and me and if you have told Staid about this I will get even with you for it.' I said, 'I am going to the barber shop, and I will go.' Q. Did he ever pick out any particular saloons you should not raid?

A. Yes, you bet we did. Fred Giese says, 'Dan we want to be careful not to pick out any saloon keepers that contributed to my star.' I have got to see a certain party and find out the names first. That's the way it was. I said, 'All right Fred,' and that was all.

Q. The star he had reference to was the diamond star?

A. The $500.00 star.

Q. Did he ever make any raids over at Little Chute?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did anybody from the sheriff's office?

A. Yes, Mr. Scherck and Mr. Kemp, they raided this place and took this jug of evidence.

Q. There never was any conviction?

A. No, sir.

Q. No charges were made against it?

A. I said often, "Fred why don't you take care of that case. There should be some money there." He said, "Leave it and I will take care of it." He had the evidence in the cabinet there for three or four weeks. I said, "Fred, you have got that liquor for about a month, to leave a man go by him the same as the rest." Then one afternoon he came running over to the jail and he said, "Did you take the evidence out of the cabinet?" I said, "Don't talk such foolishness." Then he went and accused Kemp and Scherck and he even accused Ernst Conrad. Conrad wouldn't do anything crooked on a bet.

Q. Who took the evidence they had taken down at Little Chute?

A. That day I was sitting in my office at the jail. Ernest Conrad came over and said he would like to talk to me. I said, "All right, sure, come right in." He said, "Dan the other day the Sheriff mentioned something to me I didn't like." I won't tell you that but he was he said, 'I'll tell you what I told him.' I said, 'Fred, I always got my bread and butter honest and I always will continue doing so.' He said, 'I felt pretty bad about it too.'

Q. What did you imply from that, Mr. Kelly? What did you think that Mr. Giese had said?

A. That was easy to think what he had suggested doing, something crooked the same as he did with me.

Q. You stated that the sheriff got 23 and you got 1-3?

Q. How soon was this money divided after it was taken in?

A. Just as soon as the sheriff came over to the office. Whenever this protection money was paid it was usually in the afternoon and then when Mr. Giese would come over to have his supper he would come into the office and I would say, 'Fred, here is $75.00 or $100.00 that Mr. So and So paid me today.' He would smile and take it count it. He would count off 1-3 for me and hand it to me and stick the other in his pocket.

Q. Was this the usual practice while you were turnkey at the jail?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you live at the sheriff's residence?

A. In the same building.

Q. Did you eat at the sheriff's table?

A. Yes, I had a very nice home there.

Q. You were in constant connection with him?

A. Yes, very close, night and day.

Q. You say you had a record Mr. Kelly of the transactions?

A. Yes, I did from the very beginning. I put down, I think Dietrich was the first. Anyway I put down the name, the amount paid and the date it was paid. It was on a tablet about 12 inches long and four or five inches wide. Bob Lopas paid $75.00 May or June, whatever it may have been. That's the way the record read.

Q. Where was that record kept?

A. In a drawer in my desk.

Q. In the jail?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Giese have easy access to it?

A. Yes, he could see it any time he wanted to. All he had to do was open up the drawer and look at it. Nobody else knew it was there except him and I.

Q. Was the drawer locked?

A. No, sir, it wasn't locked.

Q. Who had the keys, if there were any?

A. I had no keys for the desk at all.

Q. Your room was right in the sheriff's office.

A. Yes.

Q. How did this happen to be destroyed?

A. By the sheriff. One Monday morning he came over there and said, 'Dan, it is getting pretty hot. Give me his record book.' He took it from the drawer and tore it all into little slips and put them in the basket. Then he scattered the pieces in the basket.

Q. You stated that you went around to the different places, to see the saloon keepers, how did you get around?

A. Lohar Kemp drove me around. Q. Under whose orders?

A. Sheriff Giese's.

Q. Sheriff Giese told him to take you around?

A. Yes, absolutely.

Q. You mentioned in the jail that certain prisoners were turned loose at the instructions of Sheriff Giese?

A. Yes, certainly. I discharged nobody without instructions from the sheriff first.

Q. Have you discharged any prisoners at his instructions?

A. Yes, at his instructions.

Q. Who were those men who were discharged, that you know of?

A. Dan Lyons of Chicago. He got 10 days in jail or $10.00 and costs of $13.50. He was a little sore at Chief Prim. He came up to me and he said, 'I want to pay my fine.' I would like to get out. I said, 'All right, I will see if I can fix you up.' I called Sheriff Giese and I told him the story. He said to take the money and let him go. He gave me the $13.50 and I took him down to the depot to catch the train. He was only in jail there about four or five hours out of his whole 10 days. He tried to beat the county out of nine days board bill. He turned in a board bill for the whole nine days.

Q. Who makes out the board bills?

A. The sheriff, himself.

Q. He does that himself?

A. Yes, himself.

Q. There was a fine left there of $13.50?

A. Yes.

Q. What became of that fine?

A. Mr. Lyon paid that to me right in my office. Then afterwards, when Fred came over to dinner he came into my office and I handed him the $13.50 for Dan Lyons' fine. Dan Lyons, he just paid his fine. He took the money and he put it in his pocket, then he took it out again and gave me $3.50 and kept the $10.00.

Q. That was your share of the transaction?

A. Yes.

Q. You had no objection to taking it?

A. No, sir, I didn't. I took it. Q. Did you say anything to him about taking it? Did you make any comment on it?

A. No, sir, not at the time. After I started I went right on with it.

Q. Who else was let out?

A. Robert Raush of Neenah. He got 10 days or $10.00 and costs. He was there about 1-2 days and he said he wanted to get home. He said can you do me a favor? Will you go to see my mother or my sister, they would be willing to pay my fine for me. He gave me a letter to his sister and he said I should take it to her and she would give me the money. I took it to his sister and she said, 'Why I just turned this money over to Chief Watts of Neenah, you take this letter over there and tell him who you are and that you want the money.' I went over there and he gave me the $13.50 and I was right back with it. When I went into the jail Fred happened to be in the kitchen. I called to him and said that I had the $13.50. He said, 'That's good.' I handed him the money and he gave me $3.50 back and he kept the $10.00 and put it in his pocket. I turned him loose immediately.

Q. Do you know anything about LaDuke?

A. He did his time.

Q. Do you recall anything about receiving any keys to slot machines from Mr. Giese?

A. Yes, this was made out at Log Cabin Inn we got two machines out there. Fred said he would get the keys for the machines. He got the keys and gave them to me. I opened up the machines and we got between $12.00 and $15.00 from the two machines. I think he gave me about $5.00 back in nickels and dimes and I gave the keys back to him. I asked him if he wanted his machines back and asked him what he was going to do about it. He said, 'Do you want to sell them?' I said, 'Yes.'

"Yes, if you want them back, if the sheriff wants you to have them back, I will see to it." I went to see the sheriff, and he told me to have my dealings with Kelly at the jail. I shut the door and window. He said, 'How much for the two?' I said, $30.00 a piece. 'He counted off $60.00 and handed it to me.' I carried one machine down and he carried the other right in the afternoon in broad day light, and he took it to his office.

Q. Did you have anything thrown over them?

A. Yes, I threw a blanket over them.

Q. How many machines were carried out the door?

A. I think ten machines in all, we sold them.

Q. Some were taken out the door in broad day light and some in the evening?

A. With the exception of Mr. Faust, we got his machines out at night, about eight or eight-thirty, the rest of them were taken down in broad day light.

Q. Do you know how much Faust paid for his machines?

A. $20.00 a piece.

Q. How many machines?

A. Four machines.

Q. $20.00 all?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall any particular party that was held up in the jail on the second floor?

A. Yes, I certainly do.

Q. Can you recall the details?

A. The week before Easter we gave a party over there. Fred and I called it a Whiskey party. We served whiskey, wine and ginger ale. There were 26 or 28 men there. We served whiskey and wine and ginger ale and

I myself helped Fred to serve these drinks.

Q. Who was serving with you?

A. Just the sheriff and myself.

Q. Were there any other deputy sheriffs up there?

A. No, the deputy sheriff, as I know of, unless they were sitting down at the tables and I didn't recognize them.

Q. The only other person serving was Fred Giese; and yourself?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you make any high balls?

A. Yes, plenty of them. We served between four and five quarts of whiskey.

Q. Where did this whiskey come from?

A. That I don't know, I really don't know.

Q. It wasn't prescription whiskey?

A. It wasn't prescription whiskey. I didn't have any whiskey in the jail at the time. We didn't have any in the whiskey room down stairs I know.

Q. Did you notice and prescriptions on the bottles?

A. No, sir, I didn't see them.

Q. Did you run out of liquor that night?

A. I can't say as to that.

Q. When did the party break up, about?

A. I left about 12:30 and the party was still going good yet.

Q. Where was the party held?

A. In the ladies department on the second floor in the county jail. The janitor remembered helping me carry some of the chairs from here over there.

Q. Was Mr. Sykes there, Mr. Richard Sykes who testified a while ago?

A. Yes, I served him but I don't remember what I served him.

Q. Could he see any liquor being served?

A. I can't say as to that but it was out there and he couldn't help seeing it.

Q. You couldn't know if he drank whiskey or wine or ginger ale?

A. No, sir, I can't say to that.

Q. About when was it that Mr. Faust came to the door, do you remember about what date he paid the money?

A. I think it was in March, I wouldn't say for sure. I think it was in March.

Q. He paid how much?

A. $120.00.

Q. How much did Mr. Lopas pay?

A. Lopas paid $75.00 and then the next time he paid $75.00 and the next time he paid $100.00, that was the last payment.

Q. How much was the first payment?

A. $20.00 was the first payment.

Q. When was that paid, about?

A. About the middle of the month. I think it was about April. I had so many come in there I don't remember. I always kept track of everything on my little tablet. I can't remember the dates very well now.

Q. Who paid next, do you remember about the date?

A. Dietrich.

Q. How much did Mr. Dietrich pay?

A. $40.00.

Q. Do you recall when that was paid, about?

A. Not the date.

Q. How much did Mr. Ristau of Kaukauna pay you?

A. He paid me $75.00 and I think he paid me $75.00 two or three times and this last time he couldn't come to my office. I called him up and asked him why he didn't come the first of the month. He said, 'I have been busy to see Fred and he said not to pay it this month.' I said, 'What's the matter is there something wrong? There must be something wrong about this.' He didn't say anything but hung up. When I first talked to Mr. Ristau I said, 'Mr. Ristau why didn't you come to see me?' He said, 'The Sheriff wouldn't let me. I was dealing with him direct.' I said, 'How much did you pay the last payment?' He said the last payment was $35.00. Fred told me that Ristau never paid him a cent.

Q. Ristau told you he paid Giese $35.00?

A. Yes, Giese was always saying, 'Dan, I didn't get nothing from Ristau, get after him.'

Q. Did you recall a raid that you made on VanderVelden's out in the town of Grand Chute?

A. A private house?

A. No, sir, a road house.

A. Yes, on highway 41 across from Rainbow Gardens.

Q. Well, state what you know about that.

A. One night Mr. Conrad, Fred Giese, Lohar Kemp and myself and Walter Scherck were sitting in my office talking. They were talking about a raid. I think Walter Scherck said, 'When are we going to raid this place, tonight?' He meant that Van's Inn. I saw Fred getting the telephone book and looking up a number and he looked at me and winked and of course I knew what he meant by it. He took the telephone book and showed me the number and the name. I put the book back and went out into the hall and telephoned to VanderVelden. I said, 'George we are going to raid you tonight. This is Kelly calling. Get everything out of the way.' I came back and sat down and gave Fred the wink. We sat down and in about 45 minutes Fred said, 'Well, fellows, go out and make that raid.' Lohar Kemp and Ernest Conrad went out there but of course they didn't find anything. I knew they wouldn't find anything because I had tipped them off.

Q. Where was this phone located that you usually made your calls on?

A. Right on my desk.

Q. What's the number of your phone?

A. I have no number except 152R, that's the sheriff's residence. If Mrs. Giese don't answer or one of the girls I take it but if they answer and someone wants to talk to me they ring the buzzer and I answer it from my office.

Q. If any calls come through for you they ring the buzzer to let you know it's for you?

A. If anybody calls me up the sheriff and his family could listen in on the whole conversation.

Q. All of the three phones are on the one phone line?

A. Yes.

Q. If you were talking anybody in the sheriff's office or his residence could hear what was being said?

A. Yes, or what anybody else was saying over the phone.

Q. When was your phone installed in your office Mr. Kelly?

A. I think it was in March.

Q. March 1928?

A. Yes.

Q. After Sheriff Giese took office?

A. Yes, after he took office. I think that phone was put in some time in March.

Q. When was the room fixed up so that it presented a pretty good appearance?

A. The very next day after I went in. I went in the 10th of January and I started to remodel and fixed up my office.

Q. Your office was remodeled by Sheriff Giese?

A. It was done by myself and the prisoners.

Q. You fixed the office so it would be presentable to callers?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Did you receive any payments from Mr. VanderVelden?

A. Yes, I did. Fred would always say, 'George VanderVelden is coming in to see you day or tomorrow, take care of him.'

Q. Fred Giese told you that?

A. Yes, he said, 'He is coming in to see you, take care of him.' I always knew what he meant. One day late in the afternoon about four o'clock a little fat fellow came in and said his name was VanderVelden. I said my name was Kelly. He said, 'Glad to know you.'

I said, 'I have talked to the sheriff and I want to talk to you, come to my office and talk.' He said, 'Well you know I am selling booze and I have a good business worked up.' I said, 'Yes, Fred was telling me about it.' He said, 'Well, how much will it cost me for protection?' I said, 'Well, it will cost you $100.00 a month.' I said this is between you and me. I don't want you to go over there to bother the sheriff you come to me. Of course I couldn't do without the sheriff's knowledge about it. We couldn't do anything like this without the sheriff having knowledge of it." He said, 'How about any raids?' I said, 'If there are going to be any raids don't you worry, either the sheriff or myself will call you in plenty time.' He paid me the $100.00 and went out.

Q. What became of the $100.00 he paid you?

A. I put it in the drawer and when Fred came into the office I said, 'Fred here is $100.00 I just got from VanderVelden.' He rubbed his hands and smiled and took it as he always did. He counted off $35.00 and gave it to me.

Q. He kept $65.00 out of the $100?

A. He should get 2-3 and I get 1-3 out of the $100.00.

Q. In making these payments did anybody ever question your authority to collect these payments?

A. Yes, several of them. I simply says to them, 'If you want me to I will call here is $100.00 I just got from VanderVelden.' If you don't want to believe me go over and see him for yourself. That usually settled things with them and they paid me. Mr. Riehl came in and he said, 'Kelly I won't pay you a cent until I see Fred Giese before you get this money.' I said, 'I will call the sheriff up and have him come over. I called Fred up and he came right over. Mr. Riehl was there and I introduced him to Mr. Giese. I said, 'Mr. Riehl is kind of lousy about this deal, he thinks it's a bad deal, square. Is it alright for him to pay me the money?' Fred said, 'What ever Kelly here does with you is all right with me.' Then Fred went out. The same way with Clarence Fassbender.

He said he didn't want to pay no $15 a month and then perhaps he would be raided and lose everything. I said I would call up Sheriff Giese and talk to him or he could go to see him himself later. He said, 'I will pay you the $15.00 and the Fred later. He didn't go over to see Fred. I watched him come out and get into his car. I thought he was going to see Fred at his office but he didn't.

Q. Did VanderVelden ever doubt your word?

A. George?

A. Yes.

A. No, I guess not. He said he would like to see the sheriff. I went to get him. I told Fred that he paid his $100.00 but that he wanted to get a look at him. So Fred came into my office and said, 'Hello' and then he said, 'Dan you and Lohar have to go out some place and make a raid.' He said that so George wouldn't suspect. Then I said to George, 'Why don't you talk to Fred if anything is wrong?' He said, 'It's all right,' and he went out.

Q. When you went out to see the saloon keepers who was with you?

A. Lohar Kemp.

Q. Did he know what the purpose of these trips were?

A. I didn't tell him. I don't think Fred told him either. He said to me, 'Dan what's the idea of you going into the saloon and staying perhaps 15 minutes and coming out and going right down the line the same way.' I don't like the looks of things."

Q. He really knew something was wrong?

A. He really knew it but he didn't say anything.

CALL MEETING TO DRAW PLANS FOR SUPERVISED PLAY

Members of Civic Organization Are Particularly Invited

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—All citizens and members of civic organizations are urged to be present at the meeting Tuesday evening at the American Legion club rooms to formulate plans for a program of supervised play for the young people of the city. Since the recent meeting of the Legionaires, at which they voted to appropriate financial aid toward this work, it has been a part of their aim to interest members and heads of both service clubs, the Lions and Rotarians, as well as clergymen and other organizations to give their attention to the work. If possible the work will go forward this summer, although it will be impossible for Legionaires to sponsor the project unless.

The need of supervised play for children of grade age and upward has long been felt by parents, for the city thus far lacks any equipment for athletic sports outside of swimming. With the ground purchased on which it was once planned to erect a county training school for teachers an excellent location would be available. It is planned to build a new high school on the plot upon which the new high school will some day be erected, the playground equipment might be placed permanently. This also is near the athletic field, and there is plenty of room for tennis courts, playground ball and other games, it is said.

Plans of the Legionaires extend also to the formation of a boy scout band, with the maintenance of a scout master. Since little can be accomplished without the concentrated effort of all parents, it is the hope of those who have tried for many years to bring about the realization of such a project that all citizens attend.

COUNTY BANKERS HOLD MEETING AT NEW HOLSTEIN PARK

President of Association
Speaks on Accomplishments

Special to Post-Crescent

Chilton—The regular meeting of the Calumet County Bankers' association was held at the Civic park in New Holstein on Friday evening. The principal speaker was Arthur Kingston, president of the State Bankers' association. Mr. Kingston was for many years a resident of this city, but for the past few years has made his home in Stevens Point.

He touched briefly on what the State Bankers' association had accomplished during the past few years. His main theme was a problem which now confronts the country bank—the branch banking system. This has already made considerable inroads into Wisconsin banks in one form or another, one method being to buy a controlling interest in a bank.

The speaker maintained that this system is detrimental to a community, in that the bank will not retain its individuality, losing sight of the personal element. As the county bank is now operated, many times a loan is made to an individual who has not the necessary collateral, the small town banker being able to use his own judgment as to the security of the loan, while under the branch system he would not be able to do this.

Following the business meeting a supper was served by the mothers of the members of the New Holstein Juvenile band. The following from Chilton were present: Walter Kurtz, William N. Knauf, Frank Tesch, H. F. Arps, the Misses Cecilia Bossard, Maude Joyce and Dorothy Ploekelmann, F. J. Egerer, Robert Hugo, George Berger, William Strauss, Joseph Schmidlofer, A. J. A meeting of the Calumet County branch of the Vigilante association of the Wisconsin Bankers' association was held at the Bloom cottage at Lake Winnebago on Sunday morning for the purpose of inspection of arms in the hands of deputy sheriffs. H. A. Dunham of Milwaukee, a member of the Remington Arms Co. instructed them in the use of arms.

A. M. DeVoursney, manager of the protective department of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, was also present, as were Walter Kurtz, president of the Chilton National bank and chairman of the protective committee of the Calumet County bankers; county sheriff John Dietrich; Charles Groeschel, deputy traffic officer Harry Jobelius; Robert Hugo, president of the Calumet County Bankers' association; and deputies Norman Pfeffer, Herman Winkel and Arthur Keuler.

The funeral of Hermes Seichter, 16 year old Charlesburg youth who was killed on Tuesday when a gun he was carrying on a mowing machine fell off and discharged, was held from the Catholic church at Charlesburg at 9:30 o'clock on Saturday morning, the service being conducted by Rev. Joseph Hammer. Burial was in the Charlesburg cemetery. Bearers were Glenroy Bohl, Raymond Wettstein, Gilbert Petham, Herbert Wilberscheld, Emil Mahlbauer and Lloyd Tillman. ## Italy May Conscript Women For War Work

BY ANDRUE BERLING

Rome — (AP) — Women will play an important role in Italy's next war, to judge from reports published by the Government Committee on Civil Mobilization.

Prof. Vittorio Franchini has written an elaborate summary of the work of Italian women in the last war, giving exhaustive analyses of conditions, which leads to the belief that in the next war women will be mobilized for factories in the same manner as men are mobilized for the trenches.

Professor Franchini concludes that men should be released in wartime from the manufacture of small arms, projectiles and instruments of precision, and that women, either volunteers or gathered in through a system of conscription, should take their places.

Italian women, always accustomed to observing their place in the home and appearing in public as little as possible, were thoroughly aroused from this tradition by the World War. The committee figures show that in the first six months of the great conflict, only 14,000 Italian women were working in war industries.

When peace came this number had jumped to 200,000 and there were many more thousands taking the places of men in other industries.

The report of the Mobilization Committee tells an interesting story of the development of women's work during the war. The story comes under three periods. The first was a period of propaganda. Women were taught to support their families, rendered fatherless by mobilization, by working in the factories. This was the hardest task of all, to teach Italian women that after all these centuries their place was really not in the home—during war.

The second period was marked by the Government's work in stabilizing the place of women in industry by economic, hygienic and moral laws to eliminate every possible social danger arising from the transfer of women to the factory.

The last period, says the report, was that of the new system in full swing, when the Government sands of women working contentedly under conditions which would not damage their health or morality and with government inspectors watching the factories to see that these conditions were maintained.

The report shows that the country contributed many more women than the cities. Country women not only were more used to hard work, but the factories offered them a chance of earning more than they would in the home.

Leading Teams July 4 Doped As Pennant Winners

ATHLETICS WITH BIG LEAD LOOK LIKE CHAMPIONS

But National Loop Standings May Permit any Club to Finish on Top

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

THE Fourth of July, time-honored point for taking pennant soundings, is close at hand and if baseball tradition holds true neither the New York Yankees nor the St. Louis Cardinals will repeat their major league championship victories of last year.

Baseball tradition has it that the leaders on July 4 are the pennant winners of late September. There have been exceptions to this rule but they have been surprisingly few and far between.

As the races stand now neither the Yankees nor the Cardinals can reach the top of their respective leagues by July 4. The Yankees languish in third place in the American league, nine full games back of the league-leading Philadelphia Athletics. The Cardinals trail the Chicago Cubs, pace-setters of the National circuit, by five games.

Whatever happens between now and Independence day, the Athletics can not be ousted from the American league lead. The Cubs' hold on first place in the National league is not secure, Donie Bush's Pittsburgh Pirates trailing by only half a game.

The National league situation remained in status quo Monday as the Cubs and Cardinals, meeting in the league's only battle struggled to a wild 11-11 deadlock called at the end of the sixth inning to allow the Cardinals to grab a train for Pittsburgh. Six pitchers—to give them their official title—saw service in the shortened fray and among them granted 29 safeties. Riggs Stephenson, Cubs' outsider, was the batting star of the day. He crashed out two home runs and a double and drove in seven runs.

In the American league, the Yankees barely escaped dropping back a little further in the race. Benny Paschal's pinch home run with Koenig on base in the seventh gave the champions a 3 to 2 verdict over the Boston Red Sox. Paschal's homer enabled the Yanks to shake the spell that Billy Payne had woven over them this season. Payne already had beaten the champions twice and seemed to be well on the way to a third victory when Paschal came through. Herb Pennock was given credit for the victory although he was out of the game when the winning runs were scored, Paschal being a pinch batsman for him.

TILDEN IN SEMIS OF BRITISH MEET

Englishman Breaks into Select Circle First Time in Many Years

Wimbledon—(AP)—For the first time since 1925, the British empire has placed one of her subjects in the semi-final round of the men's singles in the British tennis championships.

H. W. Austin, generally regarded as the most promising English tennis player in recent years, gained the semi-finals along with Big Bill Tilden, Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra, by eliminating the Hungarian ace, Baron Von Kehring, in straight sets Monday.

Four years ago, J. O. Anderson of Australia, got as far as the semi-finals losing in that round to Rene Lacoste of France, but since then France and the United States had monopolized the last four places until Austin came along to break into the "charmed quartet." In 1926 the semi-finalists were Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Henri Cochet of France and Howard Kinsey of the United States. The following year it was Cochet, Borotra, Tilden and Lacoste. Last year Cochet, Lacoste, Tilden and Christian Bousset fought it out for the right to enter the final.

Austin's victory over von Kehring climaxed a series of sensational triumphs by the former Cambridge star. His victims included among others Frank Hunter and Brugnon. Notwithstanding Austin's performance, the experts are predicting another all-French final, picking Cochet to beat Tilden and Borotra to down Austin.

The women's singles has developed into pretty much of an all-American affair. Helen Wills, the defending champion and Helen Jacobs already have won their way into the semi-finals and a third American, May Sutton Bundy who won the British title more than a score of years ago, had only to dispose of Joan Ridley of England, to reach the same round. The fourth semi-finalist was Elsie Goldsack of England.

SAMMY MANDELL SEEKS OUTDOOR TRAINING CAMP

Chicago—(AP)—With his battle in defense of his title just a month away, Sammy Mandell, world light-weight champion, is finding difficulty in getting down to 135 pounds.

The titleholder, who will give Canzoneri, former featherweight champion, a shot at his crown Aug. 2 at Chicago Stadium, weighs more than 140 pounds now and is seeking a training camp site here. He had been working in his gymnasium at Rockford, Ill., his home.

Canzoneri will arrive about the middle of the month to wind up training.

LONG SHOT LOUIES

JOE DUNDEE CHAMPION AND UNDERDOG

I'LL PUT TWO BUCKS ON JOE AND IF HE COFS, I'LL LIFT THE MORTGAGE! I'D START A BANK!

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE SITUATION

SELDOM, if ever in the history of boxing has a champion been such an underdog in the betting as will be Joe Dundee, welterweight titleholder, when he steps into Floyd Fitzsimmons' Detroit ring with the challenger, Jackie Fields.

The consensus of ring followers is that the Baltimore Italian has only a Chinaman's chance in keeping Fields out of the throne room and many expect Jackie to stop Joe in a few rounds.

Dundee, who lifted the championship from Pete Latzo in 1927, has slipped badly during the last year while Fields has come up steadily through the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight ranks and today is regarded the cleverest man at his weight.

As early as a year after winning the title, the Baltimore Italian showed signs of slipping. When Young Jack Thompson, Chicago's leading welter knocked him out in two rounds, the fight musicians started to sound their A's for Joe's swarming. Thompson had come in overweight however and Joe's crown was saved. Later he was beaten twice by Al Mello and was unimpressive in most of his other fights.

Fields was matched with Thompson and won easily. The National Boxing Association proclaimed him their champion and a Dundee-Fields match became the cry of the ring bugs.

However, in tuning up fights for the Detroit scar, Dundee has beaten such tough bables as Young Ketchell and Billy Alger and the long price lovers will have a fine opportunity to become wealthy if they risk a buck or two on the lantern-jawed oyster shucker. It would be a slick spot for a killing if Joe can regain the form he enjoyed when he whipped Latzo.

Ohio State Loses Barratt, Center, Because Of Grades

BY LAWRENCE PERRY
Copyright 1929

NEW YORK Among the casualties in Ohio State's final exams was Barratt, a Buckeye mainstay in the center of the line and one of the finest pivot men in the country. He will not be eligible for football next year even if he returns to college and several promising freshmen who were counted upon to occupy varsity berths will likewise be missing.

Whether or not this is the result of a stiffening of faculty attitude toward athletes, following the drastic banding of Iowa University by the Western conference, may not be said but in any case observers of conditions in the Big Ten are one in saying that the dropping of Iowa from the famous midland athletic family has been attended by extremely satisfactory results. In several cases alumni of certain institutions whose athletic enthusiasm had led them into too ardent canvass for varsity material have been advised — from quarters where advice means something — to pipe down.

There are institutions in the conference who frequently lose varsity men because of scholastic deficiency and there are others where all athletes seem to have a faculty of bailing through a curriculum with never a headwind and all sails set. But, of course, colleges which lose athletes through classroom deficiency can do no more than wonder at the intellectual efficiency prevailing among all athletes in sister institutions and, of course, envy it.

Iowa, according to western conference members will be returned to the fold when certain remedies have been made in the conduct of sport at Iowa City. Complications that are preventing an immediate reinstatement reside in the facts brought about the dropping of the Hawkeyes.

It is asserted that at least some of the trouble has been internal and that alumni alone were not responsible for all the conditions which appeared in the indictment. These will be rectified by President Jessup and in good time Iowa will be restored to the conference sisterhood.

METHODS USED BY RUM RUNNERS ARE RAPIDLY CHANGING

Rules in Business Closely Resemble Modern Football Game

Editor's Note: (Back of the rum war front, now blazing up along the northern border, the sources of supply in Canada are becoming concerned about the new wide-open attack in Montreal they look for airplane patrols to take the field soon against the rum runners. Lemuel F. Parton discloses in the following exclusive dispatch to the Post-Crescent, Mr. Parton is cruising along the border to report the latest developments in the rum warfare.)

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright 1929 by Cons. Press
Montreal—Run running across the northern goal line is following modern football in developing the open game—less of the huddle and smash and more speed and long forward passes.

One finds here many alumni of the early Volstead era who have graduated into influence and surface respectability and whose present interests may or may not reach down to the border line, where the booze river starts flowing underground. These old settlers see in the new wide-open attack an entirely new form of warfare and they predict that government, airplane patrols, with closely lined air and land communications clear across the border, may be the next stage.

There are many intermediaries between these fronts and amiable industrialists and the big town racketeers, down in the state, who take care of the distributing end of the business. Most of the southbound beer is made here. It costs the booze running gang twenty cents a bottle and is now retailing at from $2 to $3 a bottle when it reaches the consumer. Still ultimate and still obscure, down in Philadelphia, New York and Chicago.

SEMI-ESTIMATE
Now these figures run up into $2 totals was indicated today by the statement at Washington by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment that $30,000,000 worth of Canadian liquor is being shipped into this country annually. This would be fully 40 per cent of Canada's export liquor.

Here in Montreal one begins to see the working of a complex organization which fully accounts for the spread between wholesale and retail prices. The driver of the border booze car gets only $10 a load. But the gang have to carry a long roster of scouts, fixers, lawyers and manipulators and the big government drive has raised a demand for larger and larger reserves of "fall money." There is a lot of overhead in this border booze racket and glimpsing the working of these organizations, one is led to believe that the northern collectors may well hope to succeed in making the business unprofitable. At any rate from this viewpoint, it would appear a lot easier to drive the gangs into bankruptcy than it would to drive them into jail.

A substantial citizen of this town, who built up his fortune out of the booze trucks about ten years ago discouraged himself today about the future of rum running.

NO HONEST MEN
"The thing which will probably wreck this business," he said, "is the fact that it is getting harder and harder to find honest men to do the running across the border. The exporter and importer are continually being gouged or blackmailed by somebody."

"Here is an incident which shows that I mean. A few years ago we were showing stuff across near Derbyline, in Vermont. We had one driver who used to say, everytime he came back from taking a load across, 'that patrol officer on such and such road is a tough bird. I had to give him $25.' It got so he used to report that he was stuck up for maybe $100 or $200. And, of course he always used to put this on his expense account."

We finally got suspicious and sent a new man across there with orders to buy his way through. The cops got him, the first night and we discovered that there was a string of $1700 a year patrol officers across there that you couldn't buy if you had all the money in the Bank of England.

"We fired this man and blacklisted him and he was driven out of the business. But we were always having trouble over things like this and that's what the matter with the business today. It isn't the hijacking so much. It's this continual having to sweeten somebody or else having a big chunk of dough pried off you by some dishonest employee. Most of the big dealers have ordered the men not to carry guns. This Baumes law in New York is tough for a man caught with a gun and then the other states are tightening up on this, too. That's all to the good for the runners because it means a lot less trouble and they want things to go on nicely. But some of the boys are getting worried about the hi-jackers. Of course, without a gun, they are wide open for any unprincipled outfit that wants to take their load away from them.

DON'T GO IN GAME

"I wouldn't advise any ambitious boy to go into this rum running business. It used to be a good trade for any up and coming young fellow, but there isn't much in it any more, except for the big men at the top. There are all these dishonest people getting in and too, there are a lot of foreigners coming in. They handle narcotics and Chinamen and do things which no self-respecting American boy could do."

This city has closed up its night clubs. It is not in noise "honk-atons" where one finds these outposts of the border liquor traffic. Agents and managers are genial personable men, living at good hotels and two, at least, belong to exclusive clubs.

DISCUSS OUTLOOK
They even fall into something like Rotarian discourse in discussing the business outlook. One of them talked earnestly about the increasing difficulty of "servicing" the big race

This remarkable picture of an actual rescue from the blazing wreckage of an airplane shows how Henry R. Goldsmith, Freeport, Long Island, student flyer was dragged, fatally burned, from the flames that also killed Francis Phillips, wealthy son of the late John M. Phillips, 'sewer pipe king' of New York. Goldsmith was thrown from the tiny Moth plane when it crashed and caught fire at Roosevelt Field, but landed in the wreckage and died later from burns received. Phillips, who was piloting the craft, was trapped by the flames and could not be reached by rescuers.

Flashes of Life

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
New York—Dr. A. Paul A. Lewis, pathologist associated with the Rockefeller institute for medical research, has died in Bahia, Brazil, of yellow fever, contracted while he was trying to find a more efficient method of preventing the disease. He was 50 years old.

Schenectady, N. Y. — William Gynnes Andrews, who was the oldest employee of the General Electric company, is dead. He lived to be 83 despite cancer contracted while experimenting with x-ray tubes 32 years ago.

New York—Girls who are heliophobes are advised by Dr. Charles F. Babst to avoid essaying modish sunbaths. A heliophobe is a person who burns and does not tan. Dr. Babst is chief dermatologist of the Green Point hospital.

Washington—Let the Sun shine on the children and they will not have pickets. The children's bureau has found that undernourished Porto Rican children are free from the disease.

New York—Mrs. Babe Ruth, who once played baseball herself at school, can tell about every hit every member of the Yankees has made at any stage of the game and she keeps no score card either. She attends every game with her mother.

Orange, N. J. —The latest wrinkle in wedding invitations is an engraved road map showing guests how to motor to the church. There was no trouble for friends in finding out where to see Robert Kane and Ruth White married.

Asheville, N. C. —One who takes a drink at the invitation of a friend is not guilty of illegal possession or transportation of liquor. The federal circuit court of appeals has so ruled in an insurance case. S. P. Flickinger, his fiancée and the wife of his host died of cocktails in which there was wood alcohol. The insurance company objected to paying a policy on his life on the ground that he had been negligent by violating the prohibition law.

Brookside, N. J. —When Thomas A. Edison goes motoring in summer a bottle of milk and an alcohol stove go along with him. It is the chauffeur's duty to warm the milk. The wizard drinks it under a tree.

New York—David Bernstein, who rented his seven-year-old boy out at $3 a day to a Negro, to pose as a cripple and beg, is to spend three years in jail. The son told the police his father fixed up five or six men daily as crapples, got $2 out of every $5 each made, and had an income of about $100 a day. The boy was 10 cents.

Chicken Fry, July 4 Eve., N. Milbach, Island-st, Kau.

Washington—(P)—So threatening was the future painted by Mrs. Mary Vapner, fortune teller, for witnesses in a murder trial here if they should testify, that they have refused to come to court, it is charged by the district attorney's office. Mrs. Vapner is held under $2,500 bond.

Since their fortunes were told the witnesses have had weird dreams of being bombed from the air, they said.

According to the district attorney, Mrs. Vapner and her husband came here from North Chicago, Ill., to intimidate witnesses to the beating to death of Joan Kayla, several weeks ago. Mike Tony, 55, is charged with murder in connection with the occurrence.

RURAL LEADER COURSE OPENS AT UNIVERSITY

Madison—(P)—Its bid for popularity based on the theory that many of the farm ills are social as well as economic and that proper farm leadership will aid materially in solving the problem, the University of Wisconsin's eighth annual rural leadership course has opened here. It continues 12 days dating from the first of the month.

Courses are divided into three cycles, so that students may complete a three-year course for a certificate of leadership. Not all, however, are three-session students.

Mrs. Sarah Ann Knowles died recently at Cheddar, England, at the age of 103.

CHAPTER 24
REALITIES AND NIGHTMARE
FURIE'S eyes were crafty as he considered my excited question as to "Bull" and "Nap." "Nothin'," he mumbled. "Nothin' but foolery! A couple o'-o' hom-bres I talk to!"

I thought I understand. Men in desolate places sometimes create personalities out of their own imaginations. "Did Peterson ever own the Two Brothers?" I went on. "Mebbe, I dunno."

I looked at him steadily. "Try to remember this: Did you ever hear of a 'poker game' that cracked the town?"

A wild look came into his eyes. "Peterson—Ten-to-One—Lundy—Joe Lundy—"

His words, the look in his eyes, fired my brain. Was this half-bred desert rat to untangle the snail of Andrew's life? "Yes, yes! Go on!" I implored.

But he sprang to his feet in rage. "I tell ye I disremember! Ye can't live in the Skull like I done and remember. An' I ain't a-goin' to answer no more o' your questions," he raved on.

Bitterly disappointed, I stopped him sharply. "Where were you last night?" I demanded sternly. "In me shanty by the mine."

"You are lying," I said, although I didn't believe he was. "You were in this building."

"I warn't!" he shrilled. "I was inclined to believe him. A man was in this building last night seeking my life," I went on. "If I hadn't managed to crawl into this room he'd have got me."

I no longer doubted this was the room into which I had fallen, or that the figures I had seen in it were anything else but figments of my disordered imagination. "It warn't me!" Furie snarled. "How did you happen to find me here?"

"I comes up onct in a while. This yere door warn't never locked before and I looked through a crack. You was lyin' on the floor, so I busts in the door and gives ye a guzzle o' water."

I considered him in silence for a moment. Yes, he was speaking the truth. Dillon was the man who had been after me. The purr of an automobile engine unexpectedly broke upon the graveyard quiet.

"Another o' them city sharps!" Furie screamed. Nimble as a cat, he whirled on his heel, made for the stair, and clattered down it at astonishing speed. I ran to the window. A sedan was lumbering slowly down the crooked street. Its hood was scraped to the dully gleaming aluminum and its windshield ground opaque. The car stopped and Deacon got out.

One doesn't leave a chief of police locked up in one's house with impunity, and ever since I had left San Felipe there had lain in the back of my mind the certainty that presently I should have to reckon with Henry. I made my way downstairs.

Furie had vanished. Henry was starting at the building with a grim look on his honest face. His expression didn't soften when he saw me. "I was rather looking for you, Henry," I said agreeably, as he came towards me. "What have you got to say for yourself?"

Evidently he wasn't going to be generous. "Your car is over at the mine. The children aren't here."

"Where are they?" "I don't know. They left the place just after I got here yesterday afternoon. Neither of them saw me. They were gone before I could stop them."

Henry gave a short laugh. "Why did you do this fool thing, John?"

MIDGET CHURCHES
London—What is said to be the smallest ecclesiastical building in Britain is St. Margaret's chapel, Edinburgh. This little church is only 16 1/2 x 10 1/2 feet. Doiset church at Winterborne Thompson is 23x14 feet. Churches at Culbone and St. Lawrence are also small, having less than 420 square feet of space.

An old Bible used by Gen. Robert C. Lee has been acquired by the Richmond, Va., Confederate museum.

New York —(P)—Fifteen per cent call money, which sent a speculative chill through the stock market yesterday and brought about a reaction in prices, made its appearance again today, but the market moved steadily upward, with U. S. Steel Common and at least a dozen of the leading railroads shares touching new high records for the year. There were several soft spots scattered throughout the list, particularly in the public utility group, but they had little influence on the general market.

Call money was scarce at 15 per cent for a time and the rate threatened to go higher, but New York banks freely supplied funds when the stringency became apparent and the rate was held at that level. Out of town banks began calling loans from the outset but these funds were replaced. There was no change in time money.

Commercial paper bankers' acceptances with the July 4 holiday invariably creating heavy currency demands and more stock purchase "rights" expiring this week, there appeared to be little hope of any marked easing of call money rates before next week.

U. S. Steel Common, the forthcoming dividend action of which is arousing widespread interest and expectancy, returned to its role as the market leader by climbing more than 3 points to 96 1/2, which exceeds the highest price reached before the issuance of additional stock for the retirement of funded debt.

Railroad shares were heavily bought as a result of the excellent May earnings reports now being published and also in the belief that the filing of the Wabash Merger plan would hasten action on the general railroad consolidation program.

The rise in a few issues, such as New York Central, also was accomplished by unconfirmed rumors of higher dividends. Atchafon, Union Pacific, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pere Marquette, Missouri Pacific Common, Kansas City Southern, Delaware & Hudson, Frisco Common, Wheeling & Lake Erie Preferred and Bangor & Aroostook all reached new high ground for the year, some of them touching the highest prices ever recorded. The gains ranged from 1 to 3 points.

General Electric continued its spectacular climb by advancing 1 1/2 points to a new peak at 84 1/2. Otis Elevator, Westinghouse Electric, Columbia-Carbon, Timken Roller Bearing, Pacific Lighting, Crucible Steel, Fleischmann and Union Carbide also reached new high ground. Oils became active in the early afternoon under the leadership of Atlantic refining, which crossed 74 to a new top.

General Electric broke 18 points and rallied 1 1/2. Abraham & Strauss dropped 1 1/2 points. At least a score others, including International Business Machines, Greene Cananea Copper, Public Service of New Jersey, American Telephone and International Telephone yielded 1 to 2 1/2 points.

A strong demand for special shares featured the late dealings, which saw General Electric rise more than 20 points to 85. Case Threshing Machine jumped 14 points, while Delaware & Hudson, Westinghouse Electric, A. M. Byers, Eastman Kodak and United Aircraft sold from 7 to 10 points higher. U. S. Steel touched 96 1/2. The closing was strong. Total sales were approximately 4,500,000 shares.

LITTLE DEMAND BUT PRICES ARE STEADY

26,000 Hogs Reach Market
Compared With 22,000 a Week Ago

Chicago—(P)—Demand for hogs was not active at the start, but sellers were able to make prices that were steady compared with the best time of the year before. About 26,000 arrived during the day, against more than 22,000 a week ago, and of these about 2,500 were direct to packers, while about 3,000 were held over from the day before. The total supply for the first two days of the week also showed an increase compared with a week ago. Choice light hogs sold at $11.30 to $11.40 from the outset, and good heavy butchers were placed at $11.00 and down. A week ago best hogs stopped at $11.35.

Best cattle were held at firm prices from the opening of the trade to day, but it was a little late before the market had a good start. The run was comparatively heavy, being placed at 7,000, against a little more than 3,500 the corresponding day last week. Big killers did not have anything forwarded from the stock.

Demand for lambs was slow from the start. Supply was posted at 10,000, against a little more than 3,000 a week ago. Of these about 3,500 were direct to packers. Sellers asked more than $14.75 for choice westerns, but few went to the scales early in the session. All of the reported 700 cars of live stock for the local yards arrived early.

WHEAT PRICES HERE SOAR WITH REPORTS OF FOREIGN UPTURNS

Broadened Export Demand and Reports of Crop Failures
Also Affect Rise

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago—(P)—Sudden big upturns in wheat prices at Liverpool and Buenos Aires helped give decided fresh strength today to the wheat market here. Besides, export demand for wheat from North America broadened out, today's business totaling 1,250,000 bushels, including some domestic hard winter and durum. Reports of adverse wheat crop conditions in Canada and the United States persisted, with estimates current that the 1929 yield in the United States will be 29,000,000 bushels less than last year and Canada reduced 140,000,000 bushels.

Unofficial monthly wheat crop estimates issued here today showed decided curtailment as compared with a month ago, but the cut was less radical than in general had been looked for. The average of today's estimates of 1929 domestic winter wheat production was 60,000,000 bushels, and of spring wheat 254,000,000 bushels, against respectively 62,000,000 bushels and 250,000,000 bushels, forecast a month ago.

Only moderate fluctuations here in wheat prices followed the announcement of the July crop estimates. The bullish effect of the estimates had been discounted before hand in connection with word of unlooked for sharp early upturns in wheat values today at Liverpool. Mean while, crop advices today continued to tell of shortage of moisture in spring wheat territory both sides of the Canadian boundary. Black rust was much in evidence but not expected to reach damaging stages until mid-July.

Corn was somewhat firmer in sympathy with wheat, but market as a whole made a rather poor response to bullish private crop estimates. Corn average is around 8,800,000. The smallest with one exception since pre-war days. Oats reflected less favorable crop comments.

Provisions were unsettled with packers and warehouse selling deferred deliveries.

MINNEAPOLIS CASH GRAINS
Minneapolis—(P)—Wheat futures continued their upward rush today. A steady stream of unfavorable crop reports from the spring wheat area on both sides of the Canadian border, marked strength at Liverpool and Buenos Aires and a better export demand were the leading bull cards. Close was near top level.

Oats advanced stoutly with wheat. Barley bulged strongly on strength in other grains and a high cash market. Rye dropped 2 1/2 cents; market ran up 2 1/2 cents and fell back part way on profit-taking. Cash wheat offerings were larger. Premium basis was steady to firm. Durum was steady and quiet. Corn was quiet demand and basis was easy. Oats were quiet and steady. Rye offerings were small and dear and was quiet, barley was strong to 2 cents higher and ranged from 59 to 67 cents. Flaxseed was in fair to good demand with offerings moderate.

WHEELER BILL TO PROBE SOUTHERN INDUSTRY DOOMED

Attempt to Bisect Measure Helped to Defeat Investigation

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Washington Correspondent of Post-Crescent)

Washington — The Wheeler resolution for an investigation of the Southern textile industry and strikes and working conditions therein to be made by Senator Robert M. La Follette's Manufactures committee, has apparently been consigned to two deep graves.

First of all the majority of the Committee on Manufactures decided to bisect the investigation and refer its separate halves to two federal commissions. The committee decided that the Federal Trade Commission, now overwhelmed with investigations of power industries, newspaper, chain stores, and what have you, was to investigate working conditions and see whether the northern textile industries had followed strikes in the South or had obtained control of southern mills in violation of anti-trust laws.

The United States Tariff Commission, busy furnishing statistics for Congress in connection with the new tariff bill, was to determine whether or not the benefits of the textile tariff are transmitted to the worker.

So the majority, in a report written by Senator Frederick Hale, conservative from the State of Maine where a Wisconsin conservative would look like a Bolshevik, recommended to the Senate a substitute resolution calling for an investigation extended to cover the textile industry throughout the country and split between the two overworked commissions.

WOULD GO TO COURTS
It is held practically certain that the textile industry would take to the courts the right of the Federal Trade Commission to investigate labor conditions.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, author of the original resolution, joined by Senator La Follette and Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, made a minority report, setting forth in detail Supreme Court decisions showing that the trade commission has no jurisdiction over labor disputes or working conditions, and citing the limited jurisdiction of the tariff commission, adding, "It would not seem as ridiculous to ask the Labor Department or the Treasury Department to investigate agriculture."

The minority report also cites at length the long working hours of men, women, and children in the southern textile mills, the low wages in the South, the "chronic perturbation and chronic unemployment" in the Northern textile centers, and the "general unrest among the textile workers resulting in strikes, riots, lawlessness on the part of both the employers and the employees where extremely low wages and long working hours prevail" in the South.

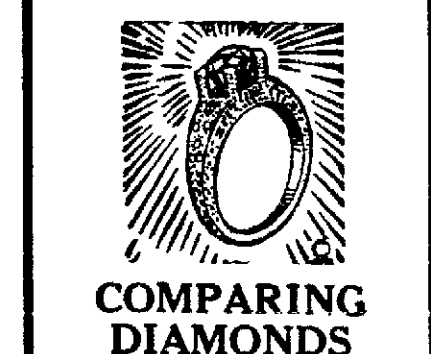

Even the emasculated resolution reported by the committee never got consideration on the floor of the Senate. Senator Hale, in whose charge the substitute resolution was, got sick and went to the hospital. Courtesy prevented its consideration.

ANOTHER NATURE'S CURE SHOP

THE COUGAR, OR MOUNTAIN LION, THINKS NOTHING OF KILLING A FULL GROWN HORSE. HE ALSO KILLS DEER, SMALL DOGS CAN CHASE HIM UP A TREE AND KEEP HIM THERE UNTIL HELP COMES.

ANOTHER NATURE HAS MADE SURE THAT THE FRUIT OF THE PERSIMMON WILL NOT BE EATEN UNTIL THE SEEDS ARE RIPE. THE GREEN FRUIT DRAWS AND PUCKERS THE LIPS OF THE PERSON EATING IT AND CHOKES THE THROAT AS WELL.

Hives Are Bothering Strawberry Eaters
Like one of the seven plagues, the hives have descended upon strawberry eaters, and enticing as is the favorite summer dish, many people have already had to forego the pleasure of eating strawberry shortcake, pie, and sauce.

However, despite the fact that hives are more common during the berry season, Appleton doctors state consideration in his absence. Neither Senator Wheeler nor Senator La Follette was able to have it brought up for debate.

So, having cut the investigation in two and consigned it to two separate graves, the Senate then piled above it scores of other matters and left it to rest in peace during the recess while more violence is reported from southern textile centers.

The Secretary of War has authorized Captain Walter Warlimont, German Army, to visit Camp McCoy, at Sparta, Wis., July 26. The German officer is visiting other army posts throughout the country.

Even the emasculated resolution reported by the committee never got consideration on the floor of the Senate. Senator Hale, in whose charge the substitute resolution was, got sick and went to the hospital. Courtesy prevented its consideration.

SHOOTINGS DISCUSSED BY AUTO ASSOCIATION

Buffalo, N. Y. — (AP) — Action by the Automobile Association of America to protect law-abiding motorists from becoming targets for law enforcement agents was indicated at the 27th annual convention of that body Monday, in the keynote address of the president, Thomas H. Henry, of Detroit.

"There is a great deal of agitation," Mr. Henry said, "over the alleged shooting of motorists by law enforcement agents. The situation is surcharged with dynamite but that is no reason why we should fail to take cognizance of its existence. As an association and as individuals we stand behind the laws of our country; we have no sympathy for the criminal or for the bootlegger. But the presence of these on the highways cannot be permitted to jeopardize the life of a single law-abiding user of the common roads."

SILENT AUTOMATIC LEADERSHIP WHERE IT MEANS MOST

RIGHT at home, where the public knows the product and the men behind it, Silent Automatic has established the greatest metropolitan success the oil burner industry has ever known.

Right in Detroit, the confidence of the public in the integrity of the manufacturer and the SATISFACTION OF OWNERS with their Silent Automatic burners has resulted in this:

Silent Automatic sales for the first three months of 1929 were more than EIGHT TIMES those of its nearest competitor.

They were greater than the COMBINED TOTAL of all other manufacturers for the same period.

This is continuing... bettering... the remarkable Detroit record for 1928, when Silent Automatic sales were FOUR TIMES those of its nearest competitor, and greater than the COMBINED TOTAL of TEN leading competitors. In New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other metropolitan centers Silent Automatic is rapidly approaching a position of unquestioned leadership.

A Silent Automatic installed now forever solves all heating problems. Come in today and let us give you complete details.

The Price of Silent Automatic is $395 complete with automatic safety and operating controls. Nominal installation charges depend on basement conditions, oil storage capacity and local requirements. Listed as standard by Underwriters' Laboratories.
